FOREWORD

To assist in more closely uniting the various departments of the University and to perpetuate the memories of one's college days and relationships, this book, the 1916 Cherry Tree, has been published.

YOUR CHERRY TREE

By WILLIAM GILLIGAN

I am not an innovation
Nor unheard-of Publication;
 Most of you remember me.
Newly dresst with ink and paper,
Fresh in thought perhaps, and caper—
Candlestick with new-lit taper—
 Greets you here your CHERRY TREE.

After days and nights of toiling,
Printers' squabbles, copy boiling,
 They are done and I am free,
But their labor without measure—
So they whisper—turned to pleasure
When they thought upon the treasure
 That I hold, your CHERRY TREE.

Pictures rare do I possess;
Courage, youth, and loveliness
 Hide within your CHERRY TREE;
Many memories do I hold,
Many truths do I unfold—
These in time will turn to gold
 And the more you'll cherish me.

L'Envoi.

Life and time are ever fleeting;
Having gone, there's no repeating—
 Naught is left save memory,
But with mem'ry still surviving
Olden times you'll be reviving
Oft and on, and in your striving
 Call upon your CHERRY TREE.

We affectionately dedicate this book to
DEAN WILLIAM ALLEN WILBUR,
a true and sincere friend of every student,
and for whom each of us holds the deepest admiration and respect.

WILLIAM ALLEN WILBUR, A. M.
Dean of Columbian College.

WILLIAM ALLEN WILBUR

"When I was sailing last summer"—but that isn't the reason we call him the Skipper. It wouldn't be a Cherry Tree, you know, without that phrase, so we use it here just to make sure.

"The Skipper" because he was born to it, and has always been commanding something. 'Way back in the nineties, when you and I were sailing toy ships on the village creek, he was called from New England to the quarter-deck of Columbian College Preparatory School—supply ship to the Deep Sea Vessel, as it were.

By and by a pier was built out to deep water, (the Deep Sea Vessel no longer needed an auxiliary), and Wilbur went aboard the larger vessel—in the English Department. Then, in an emergency when someone had to command the College, Wilbur was sent to the bridge. Further than that there isn't much to tell. For many years now he has navigated the good ship "Columbian College," and sometimes it's been pretty rough weather, but the old craft is still afloat and getting more seaworthy every day.

The Skipper has done great things for Columbian but his greatest deeds are the things he has done to shape your life and mine. In years to come, when we "breast the blows of circumstance", we will feel even more than now the value of association with this fine old salt—and a great feeling of gratitude and affection will well up for him "who bore without abuse the grand old name of gentleman."

President of the University.

CHARLES HERBERT STOCKTON

Rear Admiral, U. S. Navy, retired

Admiral Charles Herbert Stockton, President of the George Washington University, graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1865. Since that time he has been in command of several U. S. vessels. He was president of the Naval War College at Newport, R. I., from 1898-1900 and was then selected to command the battleship Kentucky.

Admiral Stockton is the author of various contributions to many periodicals and is also a compiler of the history of the U. S. Naval Asylum. He is an authority on International Law and is at present lecturing upon that subject at the University where he is honored and revered by the entire student body.

THE UNIVERSITY

George Washington University as an institution of learning has a record of which any institution might be proud, and with which it is the privilege as well as the duty of every student to familiarize himself. Academic traditions are not readily fostered by city universities, for such traditions are, as a rule, associated with old buildings on the campus and are regularly commemorated by various, for which the tolerant atmosphere of a college town and the privacy of a campus are essential. The urban college must, therefore, because of the necessities of the situation, be prepared to sacrifice much in the way of custom and tradition. For metropolitan police do not look kindly upon the "concrete expressions of college spirit and undergraduate animation." So George Washington like other institutions similarly situated, has been deprived of many customs and traditions that in other conditions commemorate the history of a college.

A national university to be located at the National Capital is an idea as old as the republic itself. In his will George Washington bequeathed a large sum of money to be used in founding such an institution, and in his plan of the Capital City on the Potomac he pictures a great university, the center of a broad scheme of national education. The first plan for an educational system in the District of Columbia—drawn up by Thomas Jefferson—provided three branches, or stages of education: primary schools, academies and a university. Congress, however, doubting its authority under the Federal Constitution to establish such a university, took no action, so that today George Washington's bequest is still unfulfilled.

The movement which resulted in the founding of what is now George Washington University began in 1819. Mr. Luther Rice, a minister of the Baptist church, realizing the opportunities offered by a college located at the seat of the Federal Government, set about collecting the funds for a college. Subscriptions were received from all classes of people in all parts of the United States. In 1821, through the influence of President Monroe, Congress granted a charter for the establishment of the "Columbian College in the District of Columbia" for the "sole and exclusive purpose of educating youth in the English, learned and foreign languages, the liberal arts, sciences and literature." Power was given the new institution to confer all the degrees usually conferred by institutions of collegiate standing. The liberal principles upon which Columbia College was founded are indicated by a clause in the original charter providing that "persons of all religious denominations shall be capable of being elected trustees, nor shall any person, either as president, professor, tutor, or pupil, be refused admittance into said college or denied any of the privileges, immunities, or advantages thereof, for or on account of his sentiments in matters of religion."

In 1822—thanks to Mr. Rice's ability as a college financier—land was purchased in what is now known as Columbia Heights and a college building was erected. To the funds which made this first little College building possible many prominent people, in England as well as America, had contributed. Among them were John Quincy Adams, William F. Crawford, John C. Calhoun, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Bishop of Durham, Lord Ashburton, Sir James Mackintosh, members of both branches of the national legislature, and many other distinguished people.

The College was formally opened on January 9, 1822, with the Rev. William as president. The departments of theology and classical studies were opened at this time, and there were thirty-nine students in attendance. Growth was so rapid, however, that within the next five years the law, medical, philosophical and preparatory departments were opened. The College continued to grow until by 1824 there were one hundred and fifty students on its rolls, attracted to the young institution from twenty-one of the twenty-four states which then composed the Union. On December 15, 1824, the first commencement was held. In the presence of President Monroe, General Lafayette, the Secretaries of State, War and Navy, and the leading members of Congress, three men were graduated.

To Mr. Luther Rice Columbian College during the early years owed its life and prosperity. Up to the time of his death in 1836 he had secured for the institution subscriptions amounting to almost one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. This money was collected from every state in the Union, and no small portion of it was received from abroad. Somewhat later Columbian College found another staunch friend in the person of Mr. John Withers, of Virginia, who contributed liberally to its support from time to time, giving in all some seventy thousand dollars. In the first administration of President Jackson Congress appropriated lots worth twenty-five thousand dollars to Columbian College, and a similar amount to Georgetown. This is the only assistance the institution has ever received at the hands of the National Government.

The effects of the Civil War were keenly felt by educational institutions in the South. In Columbian College classes were practically suspended. A large number of the students entered the ranks of the Federal armies, and a larger number—Southern Baptists—casting their lot with their respective states, served in the armies of the Confederacy. The college buildings were for the time turned into government hospitals. At the close of the great struggle a few students returned to their studies and Columbian College once more took up the task of educating the American youth. A deep debt of gratitude is owed to Mr. W. W. Corcoran, who at this period in the development of Columbian College contributed large sums to the work of the institution.

An act of Congress in 1872 changed the name of Columbian College to the Columbian University, and made the Board of Trustees self-perpetuating. The work of transforming the institution from a suburban to a city college was begun in 1879. The Trustees had reached the conclusion that, in order to hold the student body, Columbian must remove to a central location in the city. So the sale of College Hill property was undertaken. The site of the old Arlington Hotel was presented to the University by Mr. Corcoran. The property, however, was considered too small, and Mr. Corcoran was induced to allow the sale of his gift and investment of the proceeds in cheaper lands. Accordingly the Harris property at the corner of Fifteenth and H Streets, where a clubhouse had previously stood, was purchased. In 1883 the erection of a building, considered at that time to be one of the most up-to-date college buildings in the United States, was begun. Removal to this new location in the heart of the city was completed in 1884. In the beginning the Fifteenth Street building housed not only the classical and law departments, but also the Corcoran Scientific School which had recently been founded. Growth of the law department necessitated increased accommodations so that in 1898 a new building was erected on H Street in which the departments of law and diplomacy were accommodated.

By permission of Congress and with the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, Columbian College changed its name in 1904 to "George Washington University."

A few years later it became evident that the property at Fifteenth and H Streets was too valuable to be used to advantage for educational purposes, so the site and buildings were sold to Mr. W. S. Woodward for the sum of $450,000. The departments of Arts and Sciences, Engineering and Mechanic Arts, and the Teachers College were removed to a block of buildings on the south side of I Street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth Streets. The School of Architecture ceased for the time being to exist as a department of the University although arrangements were made whereby students in architecture could continue their work in the city and receive credit toward their degrees.

About this time the administration of George Washington's affairs was placed in the hands of President Charles Herbert Stockton, Rear Admiral U. S. N., retired. Under the able and farsighted management of Admiral Stockton the money received from the sale of the Fifteenth Street and other University properties was applied to the reduction of existing indebtedness; operation of the University was placed on a scientific basis, and up-to-date methods introduced in every department. As a result of this policy the institution is now on its feet financially, operating expenses are being met from operating income, and the endowments are being gradually restored to their former condition.

In February 1912 the Arlington Hotel Company served notice that the I Street buildings would shortly be demolished to make room for a new hotel and must, therefore, be vacated by the first of May of that year. At once negotiations were undertaken looking toward the acquisition of the building at 2023 G Street, northwest, formerly occupied by the St. Rose Industrial School. These negotiations resulted satisfactorily for the University. During the Easter vacation, which was extended one week to allow sufficient time for the removal, the executive offices, Engineering departments, and the Columbian College were transferred to the new location, and on April 15, 1912 classes were resumed in the new quarters. This building has been remodeled to meet the University's needs, and from time to time additional property has been purchased until now George Washington occupies four buildings in G Street in addition to the Medical School.

With a steadily growing student body and a sound financial policy George Washington's future seems to be assured. This year's registration has already reached something over eighteen hundred students: when registration for the second semester has closed, the University will undoubtedly have two thousand students. This increased attendance brings with it new problems. Educational standards are being raised, changing economic conditions demand technical training along new lines, and the Government service makes demands upon the institution. Being situated at the Nation's Capital George Washington is peculiarly fitted to prepare men for special branches of work, as for instance, the Consular Service. "It is a sound college policy to develop and strengthen all courses of study contributory in so important a way to the public service of the Government, to professional studies in law, and to higher and more intelligent conceptions of citizenship." George Washington is in spirit and in fact a national university—although since 1873 no financial assistance from a national source has been received.

The educational facilities of Washington are especially adapted to the needs of higher education. In addition to the University libraries there is the Library of Congress, the best library in the United States, and special collections in the various scientific departments of the Government, all of which by a special act of Congress have been made accessible to students.

FACULTY OF ARTS AND SCIENCES DEPARTMENT

A mere glance at the names of the members of the faculty of this branch of our university will reveal characters who have obtained a most exalted position in their respective branches of study; men whose names are known throughout the Western Hemisphere for their achievements and success, and whose life-work has been to build up a student body and prepare graduates who favorably compare with those of the leading universities of America and Europe.

The deans of the several departments are known in all realms of science, literature, engineering and education, and are recognized as authorities in their own particular endeavor. One can scarcely read a newspaper without encountering the name of the dean of our "School of Graduate Studies," for Dr. Charles E. Munroe is a recognized authority on all branches of chemistry, and is recognized by all as the foremost authority on explosives in the Western Hemisphere, if not in the world.

Professor Howard Lincoln Hodgkins, the dean of the College of Engineering, is a name which cannot be uttered without it being associated with his great ability as a master of mathematics and engineering subjects. His work for the Navy Department in the computations for the Nautical Almanac has made his name famous throughout the world.

Dean William Allen Wilbur, of Columbian College, is another of our famous men, being the author of "English Rhetoric," the text-book so highly praised by outsiders, as well as by our own student body.

William Carl Ruediger, the dean of the "Teachers College," and famous everywhere for his educational methods, is the fourth and last dean of the Department of Arts and Sciences. His college has shown a rapid growth and improvement since his appointment, and we are able to attribute its progress only to his ability.

Little would one have thought many years ago, when this university first opened its doors, that its faculty at the present day would far outnumber its student body at that time, yet such is the case. While our student body has grown until now its enrollment is bordering on two thousand students, our faculty has also shown a marked improvement in both numbers and ability. Our professors are not only teachers, but are authors, for more than one of them has published many volumes. With Professor George N. Henning at the head of the Romance Languages, and Professors Hermann Schoenfeld and Alfred Schmidt directing the Germanic Languages, with equally as capable men at the heads of the various other branches of study, we feel that we cannot hope for anything but success.

It is needless to say that the student body heartily appreciates the untiring endeavors of the members of the faculty, and holds them in its highest esteem. Success to each and every one of them is our earnest wish.

SENIOR

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY, COLUMBIAN COLLEGE

Dear Alma Mater:—

Years and years ago we came to thee a rough and untutored mob. In our barbarism we met and defeated the Class of 1915—defeated them so thoroughly that our skill in fistic combat has become a tradition, and the name of the Class of 1916 will be written high on the roll of thy most valorous children.

As time went on thy influence began to make itself felt, and our aggressive tendencies became diverted from warlike channels to those of Education and Learning. Little by little we acquired that Indefinite Something which makes thy children Scholars and Gentlemen, and quite at ease in the Society of Educated Men. We were learning. The stores of Knowledge were yielding up their treasures to us, and we were gradually becoming familiar with that priceless thing, True Culture, which roots itself in countless centuries.

Already among thy Children of 1916 there are to be found men and women of whom thou art justly proud. Some, whose occupations have necessitated their early departure from thy halls, have won distinction in their chosen fields. Among those who have stayed until thou shalt bid them go are many who have done much to uphold the Fame and Honour of their Alma Mater.

We go into that broad field of mature Manhood and Womanhood to play the game of Life as thou hast taught us to play it, to careers that will be much enriched and made more fruitful by the influence thou hast exercised over us during the formative period of our lives. We will maintain thy Fame bright and thy Honour unsullied through all our years.

On the eve of our departure we thank thee for all thou hast done for us. Whatever good we may achieve will be due in greatest degree to thy teachings, tenderness and care. But much as thou hast done for us, Alma Mater, thou hast not given us ability to express the gratitude and appreciation we feel for thee.

From our hearts, Alma Mater, we thank thee.

The Class of 1916.

SENIOR COLUMBIAN COLLEGE

GEORGE P. BARSE.....District of Columbia

We're all proud of George. His eyes are bad this year, otherwise he'd be carrying thirty hours. You may not believe it—we don't—but this young man once made a clean hundred percent in that Terrible History Examination. A. B.

JOANNA ELIZABETH BEST.....Maryland

Sigma Kappa
Sphinx, President, 1915-16.
Women's University Club, Secretary, 1914-15,
President, 1915-16.
Glee Club, Pianist, 1913-16.
Class Editor, 1915-16.

But in spite of all that Joanna has never for a moment permitted her college work to interfere with her studies. Verily, the lady has a great future. A. B.

MABEL ELIZABETH BLANCHARD

District of Columbia

Studious, of course, but her great interest in life is the stage—and who can tell, her ambitions may yet be realized. A. B.

YETTA BREZ.....District of Columbia

Sigma Kappa.
First University Scholarship.
Of a man we occasionally hear it said that "he is a prince." And by the same token she is. A. B.

ELLEN TERESA BURKE.....Massachusetts

Enosinian Society, Secretary, 1914-15
Sergeant-at-Arms, 1915-16.
Woman's University Club.

When Miss Burke wants a thing she simply goes and gets it. Witness her marks. Study isn't a necessity, but a past-time. And in history! Well, Dr. Swisher always did like her hats.

A. B.

JOHANNES PAUL CAEMMERER.....Wisconsin

A student by instinct and a botanist by choice. But in all these years Johannes has never discovered any useful purpose that is served by the laboratory.

A. B.

DONALD MONTGOMERY EARLL

District of Columbia

Phi Sigma Kappa.

Don does it apparently without effort—brilliant, you know. Why, he isn't the least bit worried about graduation. Says the Faculty can't keep him away from it with a club, or words to that stage effect. He is doing a law course now, just to keep the mental machinery in motion.

A. B.

LOUIS KYTZEN ELLENBOGEN.....New York

B. S. in Chemistry.

MARIE ELLEN GATCHELL.... District of Columbia

Marie is one of those people who study because of an earnest desire to get somewhere. And she does. And she will, if past performance is any indication of future accomplishment.

A. B.

L. A. GOODMAN.....Massachusetts

Menorah Society
Chemical Society
Coast Artillery

Of necessity a student, since he comes from Boston—"Bahston," you know how they say it up there. A. B.

MARGARET HAINES.....Pennsylvania

Treasurer, 1915-16
Women's University Club

Culture for its own sake, and all that sort of thing. But really, we have a premonition that she will turn it all to some account. A. B.

LOUIS GEIGEL HERRERA.....Porto Rico

The doctor came here for an education and has gotten it. Such trivial inconveniences as July and August have never been allowed to interfere with the scheme of things—and now that he's leaving us we wonder what Herr Schmidt will do without the doctor in the summer German courses. A. B.

LOTUS GRAHAM HUGHES.....West Virginia

Theta Delta Chi
Needham Debating Society
Enosinian Society, Vice-President, 1914-15
Class Ed., 1915-16; Cherry Tree Staff, 1915-16
What to say and what not to say, it's a problem. All rumors to the contrary, however, there's a settled conviction in our mind that he is quite harmless. In the Inter-Fraternity Relay he ran well but too long in one place. Hence the title, "Locomotion." A. B.

JOSEPH FRANK KELLY.....Wisconsin

His attractions entirely too numerous to disclose as the space is limited. A. B.

LOUIS EUGENE McARTHUR.....Utah

It used to be "Mac." Since he presided in Humanistics during the Skipper's illness, however, no one dares anything but "Mr. McArthur." Just now he is serving his government, but nature will assert itself ere long, and then we'll take much pleasure in "Professor McArthur."

A. B.

MILDRED ANNA PHOEBUS.....District of Columbia

Careful investigation fails to disclose anything about Mildred that she wouldn't like to see in print.

A. B.

ALMA HENRIETTA PREINKERT

District of Columbia

One in a thousand.

A. B.

PAUL GEORGE RUSSELL.....New York

Sigma Nu
Chemical Society

Paul's mission in life is to discover the why and wherefore. You should hear him in the history classes!!!! It's all wrong! Those chaps should never have been permitted to gum things up that way—it makes history too complicated.

CARL OBER SPAMER.....Maryland

In 1914 Mr. Spamer received an L. L. B. from the University of Maryland and was admitted to the Maryland bar. In 1914 and 1915 he attended the Johns Hopkins Summer School. Then, to fill in, he taught English in the Government schools of Japan for four years. At the February Convocation he received the Bachelor of Arts, and in June the Master of Arts will be conferred upon him. Which, we would quietly suggest, is "going some."

MRS. FRIEDA L. SPAMER.....Maryland

Mrs. Spamer was for five years a Methodist missionary at Kechung, China—Principal of the Kechung Girls' Boarding School, to be exact. But the U. S. A. had its attractions, G. W. U. not the greatest of them. A. B.

Careful investigation leads us to believe that "Taters" has the record for participation in college activities. He's some hustler, and everything "Elsie" is connected with moves right along. But don't worry, he'll be back next year to do P. G. work and will doubtless continue to be something in everything. A. B.

LLOYD VAN KIRK.....Pennsylvania

Van says that being a poor government clerk is such strenuous business he hasn't done much outside the classroom, but in view of his record as a student we won't hold it against him. He sings, too. A. B.

On occasions Julian has been bored with it all—probably because there wasn't enough in the way of student activity to absorb his energies completely—but we are of the opinion that on the whole he has had "a pretty good time." He is in the Law School now prepping for the Supreme Court. Why not? A. B.

Scenario No. 1917.

THE END OF THREE YEARS

In no Acts and Three Scenes

Editor's Note—(The fourth scene has not yet been produced, but great results are expected. The company will lay all scenes for the last act in and about Washington, except in a few isolated cases.)

Synopsis

(Not necessary—life is short enough without shortening it any more.)

Cast

Our company includes many well known celebrities such as: Tully C. Garner, known the world over for his nameless escapades, Treasurer of the Junior Class; Assistant Business Manager, "Hatchet," 1915-16.

Ted D. Seibold will play all heavy character parts.

Frances Evarts—Ingenué (Of course.)

John S. Bixler, leads in comedy, also, President of our noble class; Business Manager, "Hatchet," 1915-16; Assistant Financial Secretary Athletic Association, 1914-15. Niedzielny Society.

Leading lady not yet picked, as there are so many in the class qualified for the part.

Scenario

Scene 1. G Street near 21st; Entrance to G. W. U.—Several out-of-place looking individuals looking for Dean Wilbur—Date, Fall, 1914.

Leader—"They are Freshmen."

Much business of flattering the Professors about the grades made in High School back in Podunk Centre. The journey starts.

Scene 2. Carefree sophomores blossoming into promising material for Scene 3, which will show remarkable work on the part of the actors. (The word sophomore comes from the same root as sophisticated.)

Scene 3. More business of handshaking in the month of September, Carrying books as bluff stuff. October 22, Big meeting of the Junior Class of Columbian College. The meeting showing much enthusiasm and class spirit. Sob stuff—Tax of twenty-five cents for class dues—Who gets it? Business of electing officers.

Leader—Those Elected (or sentenced): President, John S. Bixler; Vice-President, Miss Gertrude Fogerty; Secretary, Miss Emma Reh; Treasurer, Tully C. Garner; Class Editor, Kemper F. Cowing; Sergeant-at-arms, G. J. Keenan.

No refreshments served, but plenty of powder in evidence among the fair sex. Many scenes of luncheons at Pi Phi rooms. (Abundance of eatables, such as pickles, cheese, and, well, how can we tell what they have—never been there).

When Scene 4 is completed it is positively known that some of the company will remain over and try to establish a 5th scene, but such a scene will not be officially included.

As a fitting climax let the editor make mention right here that classes may come and classes may go, but never before was there such a class as the Junior Class 1917. (We had to say this as that is really the main thing a Class History is for; praise for the bloomin' thing, whether it deserves it or not.)

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF 1918

The class of 1918 entered Columbian College as the largest and the most promising class in the history of the University.

At the first meeting of the class the most important consideration was the election of the officers.

JOHN STOKES—President.
PHYLLIS STEWART—Vice-President,
ROBERT CHICHESTER—Treasurer,
LINA FERGUSON—Secretary.

On December fifteenth the annual Freshman Prom was held at the Raleigh. The affair was a great success in every respect, except financially. During the remainder of the year the various members of the class distinguished themselves in numerous ways and at the end of the year, 1918, as a class, practically ran the College.

September twenty-ninth brought the class into prominence again; this time as Sophomores.

Again the class was called together for the purpose of electing officers who could capably direct so great a class; the following were chosen:

GEORGE S. COOPER, JR.—President,
ELEANOR STANTON—Vice-President,
CHESTER LOCKWOOD—Treasurer,
LUCY BURLINGAME—Secretary,
H. JANNY NICHOLS, JR.—Sergeant-at-arms,
JOSEPHINE JONAS—Class Editor.

Mid-years happened to be next on the program and right here the class established a record to be envied.

Not content with this the class worked up until it had its members occupying the editors' chairs on the Hatchet and the Cherry Tree.

Thus 1918 has passed through nearly two years of college work, honored by all; strong in numbers; filled with school spirit; proud of its exploits; and proclaimed by all:

"1918. SOME CLASS."

Freshman College Class

CLASS HISTORY

The year 1915-16 brought forth nothing more worthy of note than the school spirit exhibited by the Freshman Class of Columbian College. Members of this class have been chosen by students and faculty alike for positions seldom attained by first-year students.

The President of the Junior Class presided over a meeting held the twenty-fifth of October, at which the officers of the class were elected. These officials have held the favor of the student body, and shown themselves worthy representatives of a truly great class.

Early in the year came rumors that this would indeed be a remarkable class; that the Prom given every year by the Freshman Class of Columbian College would be a great success. At the solicitation of the Columbian Freshman the Presidents of all the Freshman Classes met and decided to make this what it truly should be—a University affair.

The Fort Myer Orchestra and the ballroom of the Raleigh Hotel were secured for the occasion, and on February the fourth was held the first Freshman Prom. of the George Washington University. To say that the affair was a success would be inadequate—it was phenomenal. Not for many years, and perhaps never before have the students so "got together" and "held together" in the celebration of their goodfellowship.

While there can be mentioned many of this Class worthy of individual honors, some have taken such high standing that we cannot refrain from honoring them with this mention:

George Edward Bell, who was early appointed Financial Secretary of the Athletic Association, proved his worth in the great campaign for athletics.

In this connection should be mentioned Thomas Rover Johnson (familiarly known to us as "Bus"), who became the manager of the Track Team during its organization.

Of Harold Harrison Dutton, business manager of this, our Cherry Tree, we do not need to say more than that his great work stands before you, and his success is evident.

Franklyn Hammet Myers—but ever "Frank" to us—was elected to the Presidency of the Dramatic Association. The great success of this organization is proof of the talents and industry of this fellow classman.

Robert Golden Carter ("Bob," sir, to my friends) can truly be called "First in the hearts of his classmates." With him should be mentioned Philip Rollins Fowle—we call him "Phil"—for he held the responsibility for the co-operation of all the Freshman Classes in giving the Prom.

Now does our Class pay its debt to Professor Leslie Cleveland McNemar for his help in arranging for the Prom; and to the Deans of the College and their wives, who were kind enough to chaperone this event.

Pre-Medical Class

PRE-MEDICAL.

BENSON & DAIDY

About two weeks after the Columbian College began work for the year, and all of the students taking pre-medical work had become acquainted, it was decided to organize as a class. So on Wednesday, the seventh of October, the class was organized as a class, and elected G. Vail Munsh as President. The class then looked around and elected Miss Julia H. Strobel, the only woman pre-medic, Vice-President. Then realizing that a good secretary was needed, the class elected Paul U. Vesfal, Phar. D. Knowing that they intended to be a wide-awake organization, and that they would hold a few social functions, they elected Evan Taylor to take care of the funds. An unusual amount of class spirit was seen, the men sticking together to extremes in any points of common interest. The pre-medics are represented in the various school activities, members showing the development of their lungs in the Glee Club. The Dramatic Society received a good part of its talent from the pre-medics, while the debating societies also has pre-medic members. Some of the members are graduated pharmacists, and take an active part in the University Pharmaceutical Society. In fact, in all the college activities a pre-medic man will be found. At the Freshman Prom the pre-medics held their own with the other parts of the University, a great many of them being present. A dance was given on the 22nd of December, 1915, in the hall at the Art Building, all present pronouncing it a great success. Another was held on the 22nd of March, 1916, at the Potomac Boat Club, in Georgetown, this proving to be as good, even better, than the first. At this point of Vice-President withdrew from school, and A. T. Schwartz was elected to fill her place. Several of the members distinguished themselves by making fine marks in their studies, and the rest of the class, even though not making wonderful marks, set a very good standard of scholarship. The class, although not very large—twenty-three in number—has representatives from the extreme North and South, while the wild and woolly West is also represented. Persia has its representative, as well as has Greece. The school was posted during the year through "The University Hatchet" as to the work of the Pre-medical Class by their reporter, George Wordinger. The class has tried to hold its own in everything connected with the University, and hopes that it has done so.

SENIOR ENGINEERING

And now we come to the parting of ways, whence each must take his separate course. And so it is always:—after the years have been spent in cementing friendships; after acquainting ourselves with the sorrows and hopes of our fellows; always must we break these ties asunder when we take another step upward. It is indeed one of the ironies of progress that every time we advance we leave behind something that we should have given anything but success to retain.

And since this same success is to come in the future, it ill becomes us to halt for any undue time to consider our history. True, we might, with David Copperfield, stand aside and allow the years to merge themselves into a solemn retrospection;—but modesty forbids us thus baring our past.

Sufficient to say that our own inconsequential affairs have fully occupied our minds during the time we have dwelt within the halls of George Washington. We came in, as is usual with freshman classes, with fear and trembling. It might not be too much to say that those who will seek engineering positions go out with much the same feeling. All branches of our class were together for the first year or two; considering lemniscates and the Witch of Agnesi (quite a dear old girl); seeking to establish the truths promulgated for us in the laws of Hodgkins, Henning and Schmidt, not to pass lightly by what we heard at "our last exercise;" and in all ways generally learning by hard knocks and experience what might be expected of us as we trod the flowery paths of university knowledge.

Then the first break in our ranks came, and we began to trek across the arid desert of Juniordom; that stretches out two and three years for most of us, due to our being one with Longfellow's hero of Excelsior and seeking knowledge as "the shades of night were falling fast." 'Twas in these long and lean days that cries of anguish began to arise, and the toll of those lost at sea increased mightily. Some began with the blitheness of innocence to ascertain the ultimate strength and bending moment of Mechanics and Strength of Materials; others faced the specter of Mechanism and Machine Design with no thought of the dark days to come; and still others were sacrificed on the high frequency altar of A. C. Theory and Distribution. With what deadly accuracy the forces of evil did their work is attested by a reckoning of the class roll. It is indeed fitting that we should sponser the incoming metric system by graduating as one of its units,—ten.

But these years have also given us our share of joys. Do we not remember with unholy glee how we paraded the freshmen with their night caps and milk bottles; lustily shouting for "Free Tariff for the Milk Bottle." We still think of the way light was turned into darkness in the fourth floor drawing room of the old "I" street building, to the great dismay of sundry dignified profs therein. Another memory for a select few was the old standing notice (unofficial):—"There will be no Mechanism tonight." For those of us who frequent the laboratories there are also pictures which will be a long time fading. Can we ever forget Dean No. 1 and Dean No. 2 engaging in linguistic combat concerning amperage of a watt. Even now history is being made in the Mechanical Lab., when we seek to feed the festive Angora of the Post Graduates, there engaged in demonstrating their Mexican ability.

And now our day is drawing to a close, and the 1916 Engineers will soon be numbered with the yesterdays. While our eclipse as a class and a factor in G. W. life may cause us regret, we must not pause. Rather let us step lightly over the threshold of commencement and face the problems beyond with a conscienceness that if we spend the years to come ever true to the ethics of our engineering profession, we may be allowed at that last great graduation to say:—

"I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course,
I have kept the faith."

"Tubby," as he was known at the Naval Academy, whence he came to honor our class, is the original courage-of-his-convictions man, and when that trait is intimately mixed with an electrical engineering degree the precipitate is bound to be success. His popularity is evidenced by his being chief engineer of one organization which is representative of the entire engineering school—the Engineering Society.

JOHANNESSEN, WALTER.....Texas
Eng. Soc. Class Sec.-Treas., 1915-16.

Joe hails from down near the Mexican border—from the "wild and wooley," as he is wont to say. When he left Texas his greatest ambition was to become a mining engineer in Mexico. Of late, however, the rapid change of administrations down there have prevented mining, or any other Mexican pursuit for that matter, and Joe now says that structural engineering looks pretty good to him.

MAGRUDER, OLIVER GRAHAM.....Pennsylvania
Sigma Nu.

Eng. Soc. Class Vice-Pres., 1915-16.

Another from the Keystone State, and better known as "Mac." He is with the District government, and bids fair to become one of their leading engineers. "Mac" is fond of good cigars, and likes to tell stories. He has also become an oracle in all matters concerning engineering around the District, as evidenced by the oft-repeated, "Ask 'Mac;' he knows."
B. S. in C. E.

SCHLADT, GEORGE C.....District of Columbia
Sigma Nu.

Engineering Society.

Another one of those striving for two E's. He can probably claim the title of our oldest member, inasmuch as he was forced to drop the course and go out on the road for about three years. In this last year, however, he has been one of us in our "beloved" Mechanical Lab. There we have learned to know him, and after graduation we may expect to hear any day that he has discovered the mystery of light.
B. S. in E. E.

SMITH, McCLAIN BARNITZ.....Pennsylvania

E. E. Vice-President, Engineering Society, 1915-16;
Class Secretary, 1914-15; Secretary Engineering Society, 1914-15; Class Vice-President, 1912-13.

In every class there is always placed—whether by Providence or just good luck, we know not—one man from whom we all wish graduation did not mean a parting. And so with Smith—or any other lurid appellation by which some of his friends may greet him. His unfailing good humor, his friendliness, not to mention his numerous anecdotes, have served to make many a long hour in lab and drawing room pass quickly; and we all wish that after we step over the threshold of commencement we may know more of that sunny disposition in the years to come.
B. S. in E. E.

STUTLER, HIRAM WARD.....West Virginia
Architectural Club.

It would not do to put all of these engineering minds out into the world without also putting someone there to draw their vast projects for them. So this must be Stutler's function. He is the only architect graduating this year, and we all hope his office will be kept busy turning out blue-prints of the projects (?) the rest of us are looking forward to.
B. S. in Arch.

WADHAMS, MOSES ALLYN.....Connecticut
Delta Tau Delta.

Engineering Society.

M. A. Wadhams is a typical Yankee, considering his temperament alone, although the warmth of some of his arguments with Hatfield would lead us to believe otherwise. We all look for him to emulate his illustrious namesake, and lead the civil engineers out of the wilderness of structures, etc., into the promised land of graduation. B. S. in C. E.

SOPH ENGINEERS

When the Sophomore Engineers took it upon themselves to revolt from the other sophomore classes of the Arts and Sciences Department, there was started a class which has set a record that will be hard to beat by any other class in the University. Not only did they establish a precedent by this revolt, but they unconsciously drew the real G. W. U. boosters to one side, revealing to the whole College wherein lies the talent. That group now bears the name of the Sophomore Engineers. They have showed the University that the engineer's role is to lead, and they have led. They have showed the University that the engineer's role is to construct, organize and build, and they have built.

The University Hatchet, which has never known better years, either journalistically or financially, is controlled by this class. Both editors and one assistant business manager being on its roll. The Hatchet has been complimented by editors of the daily papers on its great change in appearance and style of former years. In short, the present editors having had much experience in the newspaper field, put the Hatchet on the same class as big dailies, only on a smaller scale.

To show its capability in organization, the class has the honor of having the founder and president of the G. W. U. Art Society. It also has a majority of the men who founded the Niedzielnny Society, an order of boosters.

Besides they have in their midst treasurer of the Association of Class Presidents, athletic representative of the Engineering College, tax representative of the Engineering College, associate editor of the Cherry Tree, editor of the "Cherry Seeds," Lord Grand High priest of the Niedzielnny Society, Grand Master of Niedzielnny Society, High Keeper of the Sacred Documents of the Niedzielnny Society, members in the Chemical Society, members in the Engineering Society, members in the Skull and Circle, and, in fact, they have representatives in every big organization in G. W. U.

Freshman Engineering Class

FRESHMAN ENGINEERING HISTORY

We are the class of 1919. Our history is short, but eventful. We shall not, as other freshmen classes often do, boast of what we WILL do; but, rather, we will point with pride to what we HAVE done, and the prophecy of a brilliant future will naturally follow.

We are pioneers. Classes which have gone before us have been content to follow in the beaten path; but we are original. Never before has an engineering class organized in its first year, but we are exceptional. So take heed, and behold our illustrious class.

This, the first class of organized Freshman Engineers, is lead by Mr. H. H. Dutton, whose fame is rapidly spreading as he pilots us on toward the pinnacle of success. Watch him, and watch us make memorable footprints on the sand of time.

We sincerely regret that there is not a class in the University fit for us to take as a model; but 'tis always so with the truly great. Our ideals are so far above those of the Sophs that we fear for them. We hope that they may mend their ways and pattern themselves after us, that they may reach the coveted goal of honor. We trust, however, that they will not take their defects so seriously at heart, and join our class after the June finals. But such is the way of life, and if in our onward march toward graduation we may aid any of the lost, strayed or delayed members of the class ahead, let us welcome them into the fold.

We have an efficient organization. Although small, we are unified. Everything that the University attempts receives our hearty support. At the Freshman Prom we were well represented, and helped pay off the obligations which the Sophs found too great for them. In support of athletics we have worked long and hard, and with their return we feel rewarded, and know that we will do our share towards making our teams an honor and a credit to our school. In other lines our energetic President is the guiding hand in the publication of this book, and others of our class assist him. Truly our claim to greatness is justified.

We must stop. The Editor has allowed but a limited space, and we find it impossible to relate our achievements, so let us caution you to "watch us grow."

The Freshman Prom—Held at the Raleigh Hotel, February 4, 1916.

SENIOR TEACHERS

AMY BEATRICE GRONNA.....North Dakota

"A merry smile becomes you best."

Kappa Alpha Theta.

University of North Dakota.

Secretary-Treasurer, Senior Class, Teacher's College.

Amy's chief ambitions in life are to become a regular actress and not to miss a single Thursday afternoon at Keith's. After graduation she is going back to North Dakota to run for Senator in opposition to her father. That winning dimple of hers should prove a valuable asset.

MARY HEDGCOCK GROVER (MRS. CHAS. S.)

Indiana

"Calm and unruffled as the summer sea."

Kappa Alpha Theta

Purdue University.

Mrs. Grover tells us that she would like to try out a few of Dean Reudiger's educational theories. She is undecided, however, between such a course and settling down to be "just a lawyer's assistant." We believe that she will succeed in either line she may choose.

MILDRED MAY HUGHES.....District of Columbia

*"My toast's to the girl with a heart and a smile,
Who makes the bubble of life worth while."*

Pi Beta Phi.

Sphinx Honor Society. Women's University Club.
Eastern High School.

Mildred is one of those unusual people who can keep up a round of dances and teas and still get A's and B's,—without burning the midnight oil, either. She solemnly declares her intention of "teaching young ideas how to shoot," but,—well, we'll see.

DOROTHY BUHRMAN KALB....District of Columbia

*"And still they gazed, and still the wonder grew
That one small head could carry all she knew."*

G. O. Wilson Normal.

Pratt Institute. Cornell Summer School.

Just take a look at that list of institutions of learning above. That takes brains! Miss Kalb's greatest ambition is to become the most efficient teacher of Art in the country. We believe she will come near succeeding, too.

ANNA LELIA McKNIGHT.....District of Columbia

"A fig for care, and a fig for woe."

Chairman Philanthropic Committee.

Vice-President Senior Class, Teacher's College.

Anna's vocation is teaching school, and her avocation is making friends. If you tell her your pet joke, she will laugh at it; if you tell her your troubles, she will sympathize with you; if you tell her you are hungry, she will buy you some of Quigley's best. We doubt whether there is a girl in school who has more friends, or better deserves them.

MARGARET MORTON KNOWLES

District of Columbia

*"It's guid to be merry and wise."*Chi Omega. Sphinx Honor Society.
Vice-President Junior Class.

Class Editor Senior Class, Teacher's College.

Margaret drove into our ranks in a chariot of pleasure, drawn by Scholarship. She laughs, chats, entertains, and works alike,—with all her heart. She has made a success of all, and ours is the pride to say, "She's of 1916."

CHARLES KOTHE.....New York

*"The play's the thing."*President, Senior Class, 1916, Teacher's College.
Critic Enosinian Society.Graduate of The Morris High School and
New York Training School for Teachers.

Is interested in dramatics, painting, music and all the fine arts most useful toward the realization of an ambition which once filled the hearts of such men as David Belasco and Charles Frohman. Ad interim, however, takes issue with Bernard Shaw, who says, "If you can't do, teach."

JULIA ELIZABETH RUFF.....District of Columbia

"She's a bonnie wee lass, She's a winsome wee lass."

Women's University Club,

Chairman of Chapel Committee. Sec. of Junior Class.

In proof of our contention that it is the little things in life that count, we wish to produce Exhibit A,—Julia Elizabeth Ruff. Julia is what we should call an all-around-college-girl; she studies enough to keep in the good graces of her professors and still has plenty of time for the joy of life.

MARY LOUISE UNDERWOOD...District of Columbia

*"Delightful task! To rear the tender thought,
To teach the young idea how to shoot."*

Maryland State Normal.

Miss Underwood is deeply interested in the vocational schools of this city. We expect to see her made principal of one of them in the near future.

MARGARET S. WILLITS.....Pennsylvania

"Boldly she knocks at Wisdom's inmost gate."

Maryland Women's College.

Bloomsburg State Normal; Pennsylvania State College.

After trying most of the other Colleges in the East, Miss Willits finally came here to put the finishing touches on her education. Her English topics will go down in the history of the school. We are sure that she will make a great success as a teacher of literature.

KATHERINE MINSKER ZEIDERS

District of Columbia

"And she was wondrous wise."

Bloomsburg State Normal University of Michigan.

If you doubt the truth of the quotation above, just ask Miss Zeiders any question concerning educational theory, and all your doubts will be allayed.

ARCHITECTURE

The course in Architecture was established in the George Washington University in 1904, when the main Arts and Sciences Building was located at Fifteenth and H streets. When this building was vacated, and the Departments of Arts and Sciences were removed into smaller quarters on I street, the Architectural course was dropped by the college faculty. It was then that Professor Bibb came to the aid of the homeless students, and continued the former studies in Architecture at the studios on Seventeenth street.

The following year the Remey School was founded next to the Riggs Bank Building, and further advancement was made, with Professors Bibb and Hooton assisting. Here it was learned that Architecture, the greatest of all the Arts, was to be replaced in its rightful position in the George Washington University. Through the earnest efforts of the local chapter of the American Institute of Architects the full course for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Architecture was re-established during the college year of 1912-13. At this time the G. W. U. Architectural Club was formed to advance its present membership of thirty-two.

During the years of 1912-13 and 1913-14 the Architectural Class published a fifty-page booklet of plates of the students' work and general information pertaining to the Architectural course in this University. Each edition of this booklet was of one thousand copies, which were mailed to every practicing architect in the States of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, and Georgia, and the District of Columbia, as well as to every preparatory school likely to advance students to this University. These year books were published under the direct supervision and aid of Prof. A. L. Harris.

This year, 1915-16, has seen the greatest advancement under the tutelage of Professors Alfred Bibb, Bedford Brown, A. L. Harris, and H. Delos Smith in all the Architectural classes. The Freshman Class has seventeen students, the Architectural Club, with its increasing membership, has prominent architects lecture at its monthly meetings. The additions to the architectural library during this year represent a cash expenditure of two hundred dollars, which is infinitesimal to the value of the complete library donated by the Washington Chapter of the A. I. A., and also the library of the American Institute of Architects. These two additions amount to several hundred books and plates, many of which are the original prints and of immense value. The total valuation of the Architectural Library has reached a most creditable sum, and now compares favorably with other college libraries.

LAW

GEORGE A. DAIDY

THE LAW SCHOOL

The Law School, established in 1865, is the oldest in the city of Washington. Its course of instruction for the degree of Bachelor of Laws originally requiring two years was increased in 1898 to three years. A year of graduate work was added in 1877 leading to the degree of Master of Laws. The curriculum has since been increased by a course of study leading to the degree of Master of Patent Law.

The Law School was one of the group of law schools which in 1900 organized the Association of American Law Schools and it has remained a member of the Association since that time. This Association includes forty-six of the most progressive law schools of the country and is committed to the policy of advancement in legal education. As this school maintains the standards of the Association, work certified by it is given a maximum of credit by other law schools of the country. This enables students who are unable to complete their studies in Washington, to continue them at other institutions with a minimum loss of time and work.

The School aims to give a thorough legal training to students whose education and maturity fit them to pursue serious professional study. Over sixty per cent of its students are college graduates or have had some college training and though a four years high school course at present qualifies for admission a year or more of college work in English, Latin, History and Economics is advised, and, beginning with the academic year 1916-17, a year of college work will be required of all applicants under 21 years of age. The University permits the first year of law work to be counted as the fourth year of college work for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, thus enabling students to obtain both the academic and professional degrees in six years.

The primary function of the law school is to teach students how to study the law and imparting information is of secondary importance. Learning rules of law without reference to the facts and reasons on which they are based, results in vagueness and misunderstanding. Moreover the field of law is too vast for any student to cover in a few years. For these reasons the "case system" of instruction is used. The student studies decided cases in which the fundamental principles of law were first declared, and other cases showing their development. He receives his mental training by analyzing the facts and reasons which led to the decision and at the same time becomes thoroughly familiar with the rule of law, its origin, evolution and application as limited by the reasons on which it is based. The exercise gives him not only knowledge but power to solve new problems and saves him from becoming a mere "case" lawyer.

The substantive law is almost wholly taught by professional teachers employing the case method and giving all their time to the school; the practice courses are conducted by lawyers and judges in active practice.

The course of study is not local in its scope but constitutes a thorough preparation for the practice of law in any English speaking jurisdiction. It satisfies the professional study required for admission to the Bar examinations of the District of Columbia and all other jurisdictions of the United States. The school has conferred over 2,500 degrees, and its graduates are now practicing in every state of the Union.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

HARRY HODGES SEMMES.....	President
HOMER TIPTON SHAVER.....	Secretary
MARSHALL HIGGINS FRANCIS.....	Editor

Chapter I

1. Having grown weary of the prosaic task of making brick without straw, the Children of the Class of 1916 entered into its pilgrimage thru the Wilderness of Law.

2. Many were the plagues sent against the Children, for they understood not the ways of the jurist.

3. Their Moses, Dean Gregory, lead them valiantly on, and but few there were who succumbed to the plagues of Blackstone, Littleton and Coke.

4. Shortly, however, they found that they were but at the beginning of their journeys, and that the Red Sea of spring examinations lay before them.

5. But they had a sturdy guide and steadfast leaders and the strong hearts of youth, and while all were not able, owing to their sins of omission, to cross dry shod, few, indeed, there were who could not ford the flood.

6. The crossing of these great waters was followed by a season of ease, for the land near the waters was green and very full of fruit.

7. And it was the end of the first year, and it was called the Freshman Year.

8. Which, being interpreted, meaneth a year of ignorant conceit.

Chapter II

1. Urged forward by an insatiable desire to reach the Land of Promise, flowing with milk and honey, the Children forged ahead.

2. And the desolation of the Wilderness again came to their vision.

3. There were murmurings among the Children and many would have returned to their former task-masters. It was learned that their Moses was not to enter into the Promised Land, and they were sick at heart.

4. But the Children were not forgotten in their tribulations, and they were given a new leader, Dean Fraser, who was destined to be their Joshua.

5. Ever did this new leader urge them on to greater endeavors, yet at all times, both by day and by night, did he aid and assist them.

6. By his learning he commanded the respect of all; by his valiant leadership he claimed their admiration, and by his personal kindnesses he gained their love.

7. But yet other trials lay before the Children ere they should enter into the Land of Promise.

8. For lo! The land was barren and they suffered much.

9. And it was decreed, "As did the Children of Israel eat a quail a day, so shall ye devour from this day forth a lecture on Real Property a day and cases there unto appended."

10. And after many days it came to pass that the Children were loath to devour more Real Property, for it was a plague unto them, and many were a-sick of it, and some few even unto death.

11. And then of a sudden the Wilderness gave way to the Valley of Pleasure, and the curse was removed.

12. And now it was the end of the second year of their journeys, and it was called the Junior Year.

Chapter III

1. The Valley of Pleasure was fertile, but was not yet the Land of Promise, and it would not support them long.

2. And the Children pushed on yet again into the Wilderness.

3. And it was known that the Promised Land lay yet but a little way ahead, so spies were sent out that they might spy out the land.

4. And one spy, whose name was Potter, returned and reported what he had seen, saying:

5. "I have passed the Bar of the River Jordan, and have viewed the Land which has been given unto you. There are many giants there, but the fruits of the Land are exceeding good."

6. And hearing these words the Children took heart again, and now are come in sight of the land of Promise.

7. Some of them whose sins are too great may not be permitted to enter.

8. And yet others, fatigued by the trials of the wanderings, may not be able successfully to negotiate the Bar of the Great River, which now alone separates them from the lands flowing with milk and honey.

9. Yet they press forward undaunted, and deposit this memorial by the way, that those who come after may read and follow in their footsteps without fear.

10. And it is in the third year of their journeys, and it is called the Senior Year. Selah.

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

"Watch us next year!" That was the finale of our history as a Freshman Class. And those who took heed have been well repaid. We have had the honor thus far of being termed a Class of Distinction, and it is our purpose to continue so until our day of Cap and Gown.

It is usually conceded that between freshmen and junior years the number of students will drop perhaps a fourth or even a third of the initial enrollment. No such concession, however, need be granted the Class of Nineteen-Seventeen. We have lost but twenty-nine of those students who registered as Freshmen with the Class. A comparison with the classes which have gone before us alone can show the remarkable standard the Class has set, a standard which subsequent classes well might look upon as ideal.

Our place in the participation of University functions is most gratifying. In every field of endeavor reflecting credit upon George Washington University may be seen the names of members of the Junior Class of the Law School. Nor have we neglected Class harmony in our forward stride. A smoker was held at the University Club in November, the first of a series to be held during the year, which not only tightened the bonds of friendship of class-mates but afforded the opportunity of meeting our Professors socially.

Gradually have the principles which the individual subjects thus far mastered been molded together until what perhaps appeared a year ago to be an impregnable maze is forming a clearly discernible whole which when mastered will permit us to present ourselves before the various Bars of these United States and proclaim our readiness to enter upon our lives' work ever remembering our duty to uphold the dignity of the profession and keep it above reproach.

They talk of a land of happiness
 Where all of our dreams come true,
 Where every one works just for exercise,
 And there is not much work to do.
 But my dreams of a consummation
 In this scheme of things as they are,
 Is—a FEE, and a Case and a Client
 When I have passed the bar.

Professor King astonished his class some weeks ago while lecturing in Damages by the following:

"Every effect has a cause, otherwise, how could this effect of which this cause was the cause, be the effect which was the effect of which this cause was the cause. Isn't that clear?"

Freshman Law Class

T. R. EDWARDS

FRESHMAN LAW CLASS

The Freshmen found themselves plunged into the serious study of the law from the very beginning. Decisions of the courts, from the time when courts of England started to keep records down to the present time were studied to learn the points of law and the developments to the present day.

The class organized on November 8, 1915, and proceeded to elect officers. Thomas R. Manning was elected President and John T. Graves, Secretary. The students of the morning section later withdrew and organized separately. There is, however, a good spirit of harmony and co-operation between the two organizations. The officers of the Morning Section are: Cassius M. Dowell, President, G. V. Weikert, Secretary, and F. E. Carter, Treasurer.

The class is composed of sober and serious-minded people. They are older than usually found in freshman classes. They have passed the kittenish frivolities ordinarily attributed to freshmen. Most of them have had college training. Most of them also, are wrestling with the problems of life and are providing for their own support. Many are employed in the Executive Departments, a large number at the Capitol, some in lawyers' offices, and some are officers in the Army and some in the Navy. Quite a few are married and have families, and one is a grandfather, who is a real live freshman and a good student. The number of "co-eds" shows an increase over last year. This year there are four in the morning section and five in the evening section.

The greatest social event of the year was the Freshman Promenade on February 4, 1916, at the Raleigh. One hundred and thirty couples danced and executed artistic steps to the strains of music produced by the Fort Myer Orchestra. It was a beautiful affair. We didn't know so many pretty girls could be gathered together for one evening. It was a distinctly Freshman affair. It was a great social success, and we feel proud that it was also a financial success. At the present writing, there is a project to hold a Freshman Smoker some time in March. By the interest already shown, it is assured to be a great get-together.

The Freshman Law Class believes in a greater George Washington University and want to further its cause. They believe in its strong principles and support its activities. They want athletics, and support it in all ways. Over seventy per cent of the class signed the Athletic and Publication pledge.

MEDICAL

GEORGE A DAIDY

The Hospital

THE MEDICAL SCHOOL

The Department of Medicine ranks among the oldest medical colleges in the United States, being the seventeenth medical school to be founded in this country. In March, 1825, the first lecture was given in this department, it being then called the National Medical College—a branch of the old Columbian College. Some years later this name was changed to the Department of Medicine of the Columbian University, and later to the Department of Medicine of the George Washington University.

According to present-day standards, the original department could not be called a very wonderful school. There were at the beginning six professors, giving a two-years' course of five months each. In 1879, along with a general advancement of medical requirements throughout the country, the course was made to run seven months for three years. In 1893 a four-year course was established, and, added to this, and still further increasing the efficiency of the school, the University Hospital and University Dispensary were established in 1898.

From that time forward the Medical School has been steadily growing in efficiency and size. In 1902 the present building was opened, followed in 1903 by the opening of an addition to the hospital. It was found at this time that to fully meet the advanced requirements it was no longer possible to continue the night classes, so that, in 1906, the last night class entered. On January 1, 1914, a one-year pre-medical year was made obligatory.

This hasty review of the advancement of the Medical School in size and requirements should make its students even more proud of its present thoroughly modern state.

SENIOR.

SENIOR CLASS

On a memorable day, September 25, 1912, we, the initiated, forty-one strong, began our arduous duties. We must admit that we had a somewhat perverted idea as to what our course in medicine consisted of, for we immediately proceeded to inform the Professor of Anatomy that the course did not suit us at all, and that a change must be made at once. We were, needless to say, promptly squelched. Doubtlessly, some of our number expected to be prescribing and performing major operations after a short sojourn in our midst. If so, these thoughts were soon given up, and we settled down under the guidance of our excellent faculty to hard work.

Year by year passed by, some of our number falling by the wayside, others filling up the gaps. Oftentimes we were tempted to give up in despair, but a look back on the work accomplished encouraged us to go on, until at the present time we are virtually knocking at the gates of the profession of medicine (with fluttering hearts) and with meek voices, asking admittance.

We would not have the reader believe that our stay here has held out nothing to us except hard work. Quite the opposite has been the case. Our clinical work in our Senior and Junior years has in the main been most enjoyable. We have found our obstetrical work a delight and joy forever; in fact, we believe that when it comes to making midnight and early morning calls, we have old Paul Revere "backed up against the wall." Besides, Paul never had to carry a miniature operating room in a satchel. We laugh again when we think of the antics and witticisms of our "Weber and Fields," Quirk and Reuter, and we wonder how our "Croup Quartette," Messrs. Collins, Stratton, Ryan and Reuter, ever escaped arrest and imprisonment for disturbing the peace.

But enough of this,—let us look to the future. We believe our Class to be the equal and, we hope, superior to our predecessors. We have done an excellent work here at school; let us realize that our real instruction has just begun, and it will be necessary to make the most of every opportunity to expect success.

INDUSTRY

To medicate, to plan, resolve, perform,
Which in itself is good—as surely brings Reward of good, no matter what be done."

—Pollok.

SENIOR MEDICAL CLASS

JOHN NEVINS ANDREWS.....Maryland

Ever since our second year we have been the proud possessor of John,—prior to that, he was an asset to the College of Medical Evangelists. He intends to attend the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and later go to China as a medical missionary.

MORRIS CATZVA.....District of Columbia

Morris came direct from Russia, just to attend George Washington. Since his arrival he has been breaking all speed records in examinations. Catzva's excellent work is bound to continue in later life.

ROBERT HUGH COLLINS.....Virginia

Alpha Kappa Kappa—Kappa Alpha

Athletic Rep. 1914-15. Class Editor 1913-14.

"A light heart lives long."

"Dutch," the originator of the Phinitis Quartet, which is made up of "Young" Ryan, "Dutch" Collins, "Her Von" Reuter, and "Ignatz" Quirk. Antiquated melodies their specialty.

"Dutch" is a born politician and also acts as the parliamentarian of the class. He has many times come to the rescue in settling arguments, and has straightened out many a knotty problem in class affairs. We expect to hear from "Dutch" later in the U. S. Public Service.

AUSTIN OTTIS CONAWAY.....West Virginia

Alpha Kappa Kappa

It has been a pleasure to have been associated with "Con" for the past four years, and during that time he has won a warm spot in all our hearts. Only once did we ever see him angry and then—oh my! Never mention "reconsider" to him. He will do intern work in a West Virginia hospital and later practice in his native State.

LEROY ELMER COOLIDGE.....Pennsylvania

*"Besides, he was a shrewd philosopher,
And had read every text and gloss over."*

The University Hospital would be minus an excellent intern had not Coolidge come across the continent to George Washington from the College of Medical Evangelists. He enrolled in our class back in our sophomore year and has been a much valued member ever since.

SIDNEY CHARLES COUSINS... District of Columbia

Alpha Kappa Kappa
Secretary 1912-13-15-16.

An Englishman by birth, and American by choice. "Sid" formerly presided over the Municipal Swimming Pools and at present is intern at the National Homeopathic Hospital. At the close of school he will take up his duties as Resident Physician there.

ELEANORE CUSHING..... Illinois

Department Editor, The University Hatchet, 1915-16.
Secretary 1913-14. Intercollegiate Socialist Society.

A second Dr. Acker when it comes to quieting squalling "kids." Miss Cushing intends to specialize in obstetrics and pediatrics, following intern work. If her work in the future will equal her labors here, there will be no doubt as to her success. She has done considerable sociological work and has gained quite an enviable reputation through her poems.

JAIME JULIAN FIGUERAS..... Porto Rico

Phi Beta Pi

Before coming to us, our friend from the West Indies took his pre-medical work at Fordham and first year in medicine at the University of Virginia. Jaime expects to do intern work in one of the hospitals at San Juan next year and later go to England to take up the study of tropical medicine. We wish him the greatest success and are sure he will attain it.

JOHN EUGENE FOLSOM..... D. C.

Kappa Psi

The Pyramid Honor Society; Business Manager,
The Caduceus 1915.

From all appearances, "Gene" is one of the busiest members of the class. He finds time to intern at Casualty, run a hotel, watch over a family, operate a microscopic book store and a gouty auto. He will probably remain at Casualty until the close of the school year; later he expects to practice in the West.

STEWART MAXWELL GRAYSON..... Virginia

Phi Chi

"Sam," another member of our "Father's Club," has spent over two-thirds of the past four years patronizing the Washington-Virginia Railway Company. Stewart is going to make some local hospital a mighty good intern this summer. Some years hence we will probably find Grayson and Huddleston in partnership.

ROY TERRY HASKELL.....District of Columbia

Phi Chi

Roy is one of our best. He fills the bill to perfection as a man and as a student. His coolness is something remarkable, but we suppose his coming from Kentucky has something to do with this. A local hospital will soon claim him as intern.

JARRETT MATTHEWS HUDDLESTON

District of Columbia

Phi Chi

Jerry, the man of many adventures, and undoubtedly the man who put Georgetown on the map. We doff the "chapeau" to you, Jerry. When it comes to startling episodes, you have the "Perils of Pauline" looking like the "Adventures of Alice in Wonderland;" at the same time we all love Jerry, whose unlimited supply of good-nature, is freely dispensed at all times and in all places.

EDWARD RAYMOND HUNTER.....New Jersey

M. D., 1914, The Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia, Penna.

Our "Stocial" friend Hunter came to us with the degree, for which we are all striving. Dr. Hunter has never hesitated to come to our assistance, in "writing up" our cases at the George Washington University Hospital, where he has been "interned" since the beginning of the school year.

BURTON LEROY JACOBS.....Tennessee

A. B., Union College 1913.

M. A., University of Nebraska 1914.

"Dr. Jacobi" has been with us two years. He formerly attended the College of Medical Evangelists. He has received an internship at the Baroness Erlanger Hospital, Chattanooga.

EDWARD BAILEY MACON.....District of Columbia

Ph. G., Tri-State College, Angola, Indiana, 1909.

"Lord Chumley," also "Eddie." Somebody heard "Eddie" laughing in the "smoking room" last week. On being asked, "Why the mirth?" "Eddie" replied, that he heard a very funny story at Keith's in 1914. It took him two years, but he got it.

Some excellent hospital will find "Eddie" interned in the psychopathic ward.

LOUIS EUGENE McCANNA.....New York

"Mac" is afflicted with "Wanderlust;" that is, does not stop in any one boarding house long, but is liable to take his "other collar," pack up his "cigar box," and migrate overnight. However, he succeeds in pulling down some pretty high averages and rates among the class leaders. "Mac" will do post-graduate work in New York City.

WILLIAM HARRISON NORTON.....New York

Phi Chi

Phar. D., 1911, The George Washington University.
Vice-President 1914-15.

It has been said that brains and hair do not go together. "Bill" has lots of the former and very little of the latter. In fact, he has lately received offers to pose for the well known advertisement, "Going, going, gone!" For the past year he has been Pharmacist to the Sibley Hospital. Those in charge there, think so much of him that he will probably be one of their new interns. "Bill" has a personality which will be sure to bring him success.

RICHARD THOMAS POWERS.....New York

"The world must have great minds, even as great spheres suns."

"Slim" Powers made debut in our midst back in 1913, coming from the College of Medical Evangelists. Needless to say he made good with a vengeance and has continued to do so ever since. Our best wishes for success go with him.

JEROME THURSTON QUIRK.....Virginia

Kappa Sigma, Phi Chi

Class President 1912-13-14. Treasurer 1915-16.
President, The Association of Class Presidents, 1913-14.

Without this manufacturer and dispenser of joy, the life of the class would be one of gloom. "Jerry" and Fritz put over that Weber and Fields stuff to perfection. When not occupied at school, he, in the guise of Resident Assistant Pathologist at Garfield, chases the nimble microbe. Down in Winchester the finest little girl, aged three, is waiting for her "papa" to return home a full-fledged "Doctor."

JAMES ARCHIE RAMSEY.....Canada

Not until 1914 did the fame of our class reach the Pacific Coast. It was then that our lanky friend made tracks for George Washington, coming from the College of Medical Evangelists. Ramsey expects to locate in Santa Monica, California.

EUGENE CLARENCE RICE, JR. District of Columbia

Phi Chi

Pyramid Honor Society. Class Editor 1914-15-16.
Departmental Editor, Univ. Hatchet 1913-14-15.
President of G. W. U. Rifle Club 1913-14-15.
Rifle Team 1912-13-14.

Clarence surely deserves our sincerest gratitude for the interest which he has always shown in class affairs, and his name will go down in the history of College affairs as the man who never failed in any duty imposed upon him by the class.

RAFAEL A. RIVERA Porto Rico

Phi Chi Delta

Another member of the Porto Rican delegation, and a mighty good one too. At the close of school, Rafael expects to take an internship in an Arecibo hospital.

LOUIS CHARLES ROSENBERG Connecticut

Phi Alpha

"Lefty Louey" seems addicted to the making of high marks in all his subjects. As a sample of what he can do, we mention the fact that he was given his license to practice pharmacy in the District at the end of his first year in the study of that subject. After graduation, he expects to secure his degree in pharmacy and then take a post-graduate course in medicine at Harvard.

FRANK KEVAN RYAN New York

Kappa Sigma

Class President 1914, 1915, 1916.

"Our Class President," and he is surely deserving of the title, for he has piloted this "remarkable class" through a sea of troubled waters during the past two years, with the utmost good judgment and foresight.

Frank will undoubtedly practice in New York State, where there are exceptional opportunities for a man of his ability.

JOSEPH SHILEN New York

Kappa Psi

"Shi" is one of our best bets. Besides being a good student, he is one among few who can make a mandolin "talk." Next summer will find him doing intern work.

VINCENT JOSEPH STACHNIEWICZ

District of Columbia

Phi Chi

B. Ph., Freiburg College, Switzerland

Treasurer 1913-14.

Vincent, alias "Stachey," is somewhat more mature than the rest of us, but at the same time is always one of the boys. Vincent is the possessor of a goodly supply of "horse sense," and on many occasions his advice to the class has been worth taking. Vincent is a linguist and familiar with the manners and customs of many foreign lands, including our own. No doubt he will practice in a locality where his knowledge of languages will be invaluable to him.

ERNEST KENNETH STRATTON.....New Jersey

Kappa Sigma, Kappa Psi

P. D., 1910, Philadelphia College of Pharmacy.

Treasurer 1912-13.

"Strat," is said to have laid the corner-stone for the new Emergency Hospital, and we have it from the best authority, that he studies anatomy at the Corcoran Art Gallery just opposite; at all events he is a "connoisseur," in many and divers ways. He intends to do his post-graduate work in New York City and will eventually specialize in genito-urinary surgery.

STERLING PRICE TAYLOR, JR..District of Columbia

As a student, Sterling has lead us a merry chase. Coming to G. W. with a scholarship, he has maintained the highest average in the class ever since. Taylor was formerly intern at Homeopathic and has secured one of the appointments for internship at Garfield. Sterling has achieved quite a reputation as Dr. Bovee's diagnostician at Columbia.

LEO CROMWELL THYSON.....District of Columbia

Alpha Kappa Kappa

Phar. D., 1912, The George Washington University.

Stern as Cromwell, Leo confides all his latest discoveries to Dr. Bovee. For perseverance he leads us all, and this doubtless will be a great factor in his future successes. He will probably do intern work in the West.

JOEL ADAMS TILTON, JR.....District of Columbia

Phi Chi

Vice-President 1915-16. Secretary 1914-15

Editor 1912-13.

"It's the little things that count."

"Joe" is one of those little things and when there is anything doing, "Joe" is bound to be heard from. As a student, he has achieved the highest rung of success, capturing the Ordreux Prize last year. "Joe" will intern in a local hospital and when he starts to practice, he is bound to be so successful that Georgetown, D. C., will doubtlessly be placed on the map.

ROBERT RALPH WALTON.....Washington

Phi Chi, Kappa Sigma.

"Bobby," eccentric comedian. Versatility is his middle name. His character sketches are wonderful, and his personal character is irreproachable. "Bobby" is the originator of the "Cripple walk" which has made him famous.

Here's hoping that his "walk" through life will also make him famous. The "Call of the Wild" has reached him and he will practice in the far West.

PAUL AMOS WHITE.....Michigan

Alpha Kappa Kappa

B. S., 1908, Simpson College.

Ph. B., University of Chicago, 1908.

How Brother White manages to give the Medical School any of his time, after dividing his attention among a family, his classes at Business High School and coaching the foot ball and base ball teams there, is a problem too difficult for us to solve. Suffice to say, that he has rendered an excellent account of himself here. During the past three summers he also manages to work in summer courses at Rush Medical College. He expects to do intern work and then practice in the middle west.

GEORGE GERNON BERGERON.....Massachusetts

Phi Chi

"A happy genius is the gift of nature."

George is a genius and a happy one too. "Berge" travels in the best society of our city and occasionally in Folsom's car. He is well known at Casualty and Washington Asylum Hospitals, where he has done some excellent work as intern.

CARLOS NICOLAS BRIN.....Panama

Phi Chi

Phi Chi Delta

"Senor" Brin, Pan-American diplomat, has been with us during the conflict of the past four years and no one has ever seen him without his infectious smile and pleasant manner. Carlos, will enter the Santa Joncas Hospital at Panama City and will remain in his native town to practice. He surely deserves to be successful.

EVERELL V. CHADWICK.....Pennsylvania

Phi Rho Sigma

"They fed him on lentils and honey and he throve."

Until a few weeks ago, "Chad" was the Major Domo of the Washington Asylum Hospital, but on account of the speed of Washington street cars, "Chad," remembering "Safety first" resigned and took up his abode with John Ladd. "Chad" will take up his post-graduate work in Northern New York.

FRANK TENNY CHAMBERLIN, JR.

District of Columbia

Kappa Psi

Class Treasurer 1914-15.

Athletic Representative 1915-16.

He was always behind before, but now he is first, at last. "Doctor Chamberlin's here." Frank, the embryonic gynecologist, worships at the shrine of Dr. Bovee. Any Tuesday night he may be found waiting at the clinic door of G. W. U. H. so that he may be first the following morning for the "examination." Frank is a good earnest worker and if the untiring effort which he is putting forth now will continue during the rest of his career, he will surely make good.

JOHN MORRISS LADD.....District of Columbia

"John Henry" has made a hospital his stamping ground for the past two years. First, he broke all speed records on the ambulance at Casualty,—later, the firm of Chadwick and Ladd held forth at Washington Asylum. Just at present John has given up hospital work, but shortly after graduation will take a position at the South Carolina State Hospital.

FRITZ AUGUST REUTER.....District of Columbia

Alpha Kappa Kappa

Athletic Representative 1912-13.

Vice-President 1913-14.

We have discovered that "Fritz" is not strictly neutral, he favors the Virginians. In our few idle moments, Fritz and his "Mascot" Jerry Quirk, succeeded in entertaining the class as "Weber and Fields." Fritz has made quite an enviable reputation for himself in public health work, and recently delivered an exceptionally fine illustrated lecture on the work done in this particular branch, which was both interesting and instructive to both physicians and students. After engaging in a year's hospital work, Fritz will take up the Public Health Service, as a specialty.

VIRGIL BLACKSTONE WILLIAMS

District of Columbia

Phi Chi

Williams is a most quiet and retiring chap. He manages to attend school and do hospital work at Childrens'. From what the "kids" there tell us, there is no one like "Doctor Williams."

JUNIOR

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

Although the last class to enter George Washington Medical School without a pre-medical course, we feel that we have completed our three years without any handicap. By our hard and conscientious work we have attained the distinction of becoming upper-classmen.

In the fall of 1913 there gathered at the medical building from the four corners of the world, seventy-six men to form one of the largest classes in the history of the school. At that time we organized, or rather attempted to organize our present body. "Politics" separated us into various units and it was not until the coming of Wm. T. Gill, Jr., that we acquired our present strong organization.

Our first official act was the adoption of the honor system of student government, consisting of an honor committee and subject to the cooperation and supervision of the faculty. A great deal of uncertainty was manifested as to what the "cooperation of the faculty" might mean, but, "we came to criticise and remained to praise," for this "cooperation" has often proven our salvation.

The major portion of the first year was consumed by adjustment to our new surroundings. Only one sad event, the death of Mr. Pearsons, marred our otherwise pleasant year.

The fall of 1914 saw forty-nine of the faces assembled to begin the new work, without the confusion of the previous year. At the fall election James Houghton was chosen to guide our class through its perils, and acquitted himself in a most worthy manner.

The present school year being our third, we feel that we now have the school habit, "three times making a habit." A few losses from the old crowd and a few gains by new students and our class numbers forty-six.

"One more year" is not our class yell but it is our class thought, hope, and expectation.

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

We entered the Medical School, in the fall of 1914, as the first class to enter under the advanced requirements. Because of the sudden raising of the entrance requirements, we were the smallest class in the school, being only 24 strong. But what we lacked in numbers we made up in ability, and it was not long before we were setting a standard for the upper classmen, as well as for the members of future classes.

When we reassembled in the fall of 1914, but 15 of us had survived. We received 6 additions from outside sources and so started our sophomore year with 21 members.

Our achievements are so well known that to dwell on them here would be trite. But in order that future classes may have a good example to follow, a brief history is given.

The History of the George Washington Medical Class of 1918.

September 29,	The Dean welcomes us to the University.

FRESH MEN.

L. H. FREEMIRE

THE FRESHMAN MEDICAL CLASS

The Freshman Medical Class of '19 was founded on September 29, 1915, enrolling twenty-nine members. To date but nineteen remain. Actual work began on October 1, the class getting their primary initiation into the secrets and horrors of the dissecting room. Several lunches remained untouched that day, and, strange to say, even at this late date Doyle remains a vegetarian.

The "student government" and "honor system" were adopted in accordance with the customs of the school, and class officers were elected.

ELLIOT M. CAMPBELL.....	President
JOSEPH KREISELMAN.....	Vice-President
H. D. SHAPIRO.....	Secretary
NATHAN N. SIMLER.....	Treasurer
JACK B. ZERBE.....	Class Reporter and Editor

This staff was but temporary, and on November 1, 1915, new officers were elected to permanently fill these positions for the school year. The following is the staff:

JOSEPH KREISELMAN.....	President
CHARLES J. BARONE.....	Vice-President
M. I. BERMAN.....	Secretary
ROBERT ROY HOTTEL.....	Treasurer
JACK B. ZERBE.....	Class Editor and Reporter

The class started things from the beginning. A bowling team was organized, and defeated the Sophomores in two successive contests, but lost to the "Chemists."

Two smokers were held during the year, which were well attended, and which brought the student body and faculty closer together in more ways than one.

The class is "strong" for school activities, and supports all forms of athletics. The vote for the resumption of athletics was supported unanimously by the Fresh-Meds., and 90 per cent. signed up for the "Year Book."

THE SURGEON

Unmoved, while 'round him roars the battles's flood,
Remote, as though a world away, in thought;
Untainted by the hate and lust for blood
Which fills his hands—its fearful havoc wrought,—
The while men slay and slay and know no peace,
But sing of hate and devastate the land,
He mends the maimed that for a space must cease
Their work of hell, and yield them to his hand.

While other hands are raised to strike and kill
His heal,—or haply ease a parting soul;
While others take, he gives and gives, until
He, too, may lie—asleep—where battles roll.
Whate'er the gain of War in Time may be,
It spells to those who see, uncounted loss;
Though in the frantic battling world we see
Men saved once more—and by a Crimson Cross!

NURSES SCHOOL

G. A. DAIDY

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

Of the Senior Class of 1916

We, the members of the Senior Class of the G. W. U. Hospital Training School, City of Washington, District of Columbia, being moderately sound in mind and comfortably so in body, with the exception of a few gray hairs and wrinkles gained by losing our rest periods for various reasons, do hereby make the following disposition of our goods and chattels, effects and belongings ere we depart to "fresh fields and pastures new:"

Article I. It is with a feeling of sadness that we hereby bequeath to the incoming graduating class our position as Seniors, with all the responsibility and dignity accompanying it. Let them not become discouraged when they make the mournful discovery that the Senior life is in reality filled with more prose than poetry.

Article II. We also leave to the supervisors our badge of dignity (the black band), and to those whom they may fit our uniforms of blue. But if some maiden be inclined to glory too much in her newly acquired robe of wisdom, let her remember that they have been worn by others with equal grace and dignity. These attractive uniforms have often been used as a cloak for multitudes of sins, but it is decidedly better to follow the straight and narrow way, especially shunning all sins of omission.

Article III. To said class we also bequeath the bright and shiny sterilizers and instruments in the operating room, which are scrubbed every Sunday for exercise, and as we have been pretty energetic at times, some of them may be a little scratched and the sterilizers patched. But these are to become the property of said girls only on condition that they set apart at the end of each month a day of fasting and lamentation, when they shall sadly mourn the departure of about half of their $7.00.

Article IV. To that most capable girl who is dry-eyed and will not flirt with the students, we bequeath our beloved M. & F., with all the Probs and troubles which go with them.

Article V. The Senior Home we bequeath to those girls who, for various reasons, desire to be as far from Miss Dorsett as possible. As this section is a very convenient place to hold midnight feasts, provided no hungry rat causes undue commotion, or the olive bottle does not fall on the floor too hard.

Article VI. We further bequeath several old rat traps, which can be found stored away in dark corners. However, these rats have become fairly well educated through close attention to the brilliant Senior conversations in the diet kitchens, and will in turn cunningly avoid all such instruments of torture.

Article VII. To all future Seniors we leave our class room chairs. These "seats of the mighty," on which they will find the initials of most of the students scratched while endeavoring to recite lessons which they had not prepared. We would advise them instead of expending energy on trying to study them out, to apply themselves with zeal to the comprehension of all such things that every graduate ought to know.

Article VIII. To any two members of the Intermediate Class whose sole aim and purpose in life is to graduate with the least possible exertion, and to that end learn only the first and last questions of their lessons, we bequeath the chairs at each end of the first row.

Article IX. We gladly bequeath to said class all our text-books and papers, which are in excellent condition, as we have taken great care of these priceless things. Our Dietetics notes, which to the uninitiated may appear a trifle dry, will, nevertheless, be of great service to those individuals who are anticipating matrimony. We notice several are taking great interest in all recipes, and are willing to be cook every week.

Article X. With sad and sorrowful hearts we relinquish our claim upon Miss Glascock, who has tried hard to show us our duty in all things, and has deprived herself of her morning nap to come out in all kinds of weather to start us out right for the day.

Article XI. As a compensation for the loss of us, we would suggest that the incoming Seniors frame in deep gilt moulding large pictures of each member of this class, and hang all eighteen of them on the walls of the Reception Room. This we impose upon them as a sacred duty and privilege.

In witness whereof we, the Class of 1916, do herewith set our hands and seals, and declare this to be our last Will and Testament on this, the 6th day of June, nineteen hundred and sixteen.

Class of 1916, per A. I. G.

Signed, subscribed and declared by the Class of 1916 to be their last Will and Testament in the presence of us, these witnesses, who hereby subscribe our names:

LOUISE HARROVER, President.

ELIZABETH JOLLIFFE, Secretary.

DOLORES ARMIJO.....New Mexico

Let us, then, be what we are, and speak what we think.

Dolly is small in one thing, and that is her size. A big-hearted girl, who is very decided in her opinions. She has acquired that power of concentrating her mind on whatever she undertakes, and the amount of work she accomplishes is wonderful. There has never lived one who is truer-hearted, and when once you have gained her friendship she will stand by you forever.

HAZEL DAWN BICKSLER.....Virginia

*Our little lives are kept in equipoise
By opposite attractions and desires.*

One whom nature has been so kind to, her classmates feel incapable of characterizing her as she really is. Charming to look at and delightful in her sweet simplicity, winning the hearts of all. But fate has destined this sometimes dignified Senior to live and die an old maid? ? !

BERNICE LUCILLE DAVIS.....Virginia

*Don't worry about the future,
The present is all thou hast.*

Bernice's chief characteristic is crossing bridges before she comes to them. To see her you would not believe this, for she possesses a wit as brilliant as her hair, and a delightfully magnetic personality, making her thoroughly lovable and charming.

ERNESTINE MAE DODD.....District of Columbia

Don't worry over trouble, it never broke a date yet.

When Dodd is wound up she is just like a phonograph. But there is not one who does not like to hear her when she gets started. Good-natured, never gets perturbed, full of fun, makes friends with all, is intimate with a few, loves one at a time.

MARY GALLAGHER.....Ireland

We know a subject ourselves, or we know where we can find information upon it.

Mary, our Irish lassie, can give you information on any subject. If you want to know the meaning of the big words, just ask Irish—her charts are full of them. She is a deep-thinker and a very capable nurse, and one we will be proud to represent G. W. U. H. in Ireland.

ANNA IONA GARBER.....Virginia
 Class Secretary, 1915. Class Editor, 1916.
"The key to success is constancy and singleness of purpose."

Gabby is a dispenser of good advice and chunks of wisdom. Her middle name should be "Solomon." She has the faculty for rectifying any situation, no matter how perplexing, to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. She lends a charm and dignity to the profession for which she is so thoroughly adapted. Her's is a conscientious and lovable nature, which makes her a supreme favorite amongst her acquaintances.

RUTH PAINTER GRAY.....Maryland
*Enjoy the Spring of Love and Youth,
 To some good angel leave the rest.*

A sweet, lovable girl, charming in face and feature, and has a gentle, sweet disposition. Her eyes—"the windows of the soul"—portray the depth and purity of her efforts, resulting in noble womanhood.

WILLA SNYDER HALLIDA.....West Virginia
Conscience is the highest of all courts.

Dot possesses those rare virtues which every ideal woman has—modest "grace," gentle, quiet manners, a low, sweet voice—and a conscience—yet beneath this demure and maidenly reserve a resistless, fun-loving spirit dances. She has won all our hearts by her gentle ways.

MINNIE HARWOOD HALL.....Virginia
 Vice-President, 1914-16.

Happiness is a perfume you cannot pour upon others without getting a few drops on yourself.

Behold this stately maiden with all the grace of womanhood. Her predominating quality is originality, and is shown in everything the Seniors undertake. She is one of our most enthusiastic members, and enters into everything with her whole soul. So dainty and neat in her personal appearance, but, best of all, so loyal and true to her friends.

MARY LOUISE HARROVER....District of Columbia
 Class President, 1914-15-16.

Give what you have—to someone—it may be better than you dare to think.

What would we do without dear old "Harry?" With a heart in proportion to her height, we find it rather large and very true to those who win it. No one ever donned the white uniform with more grace, and who of us is not proud of our stately Senior as she leads the procession?

ELIZABETH PAGE JOLLIFFE.....Maryland

Secretary-Treasurer, 1914-16.

Everything in this world depends upon will.

One of Bessie's chief characteristics is her level-headedness. Her self-control is almost perfect. No emergencies ever cause her to lose it, but she passes through them with a dignity and self-possession which belong to her alone. She often appears indifferent, but to those who know her best she is one of the warmest-hearted of girls.

LUCY MAE KELLEY.....District of Columbia

Like the new moon, thy life appearsA little strip of silver light.

A gentle, helpful girl, never too busy to lend a helping hand, and truly we can say of her, "She has learned in whatever state she is, therewith to be content."

EVELYN LEWIS LEE.....Virginia

Labor with what zeal we will,Something still remains undone.

We have known many girls, but have found none with a truer heart than Bantam. She is steady and thoughtful, and always knows her lesson. She is a winsome, wee woman, and has won all our hearts by her gentle, modest ways.

GENEVIEVE LAUGHHEAD.....New York

Time flies, suns rise, and shadows fall;Let it go by, lo!—love is over all.

Jane is loved by us all. Gifted with tact and originality, knowing well how to win her way successfully, and winning hearts in this way. Dare we whisper fickle? Well, one consolation is, if she loves you for long, she loves you forever.

LOUISE MELTON.....North Carolina

Conduct is the mouthpiece of character.

Louise is very dignified, and at times very solemn; at least she tries to make us think so, though her brown eyes dance with mischief. Her pet hobby is neatness, and she not only lives up to it herself, but generally contrives to make those around her do likewise.

CASSIE LA VERNE WEBSTER SUTHERLAND,
Virginia

Quarrels would not last long if the faults were only on one side.

Everyone tries to get into the dining room for the first act when Cassie and Bantam are there. However, the storm is soon over, and you are a "sweet thing" once more. Cassie La Verne is noted for her generosity and originality. She never keeps a doctor waiting—if she doesn't have what he asks for, she can always give him "something just as good."

SUE CATHERINE WHELAN... District of Columbia
Class Editor, 1915.

True happiness consists not in a multitude of friends, but in their worth and choice.

Sue's ambition is to be a trained nurse, and the tender care with which she watches over her friends leads us to think she will succeed. She is always ready for a frolic, and is just as enthusiastic over her duties. With all her faults and virtues she has learned the art of making friends, and those with whom she is associated always love her.

NANNIE HOLMES BLACKMORE..... Virginia
Vice-President, 1915.

Success does not depend so much on external help as on self-reliance.

Just a true-hearted, whole-souled little girl, whose faults are no more than those of other people. She is seldom angry, forgives easily, but never forgets. Truly her dimple in her cheek was "that tiny place upon her face where your heart tumbled in."

Starting as we did on our journey of three years of hard work and study with a class of seventeen, it makes us sad to think that hard luck and Dan Cupid are responsible for our class dwindling down to five, but we have resolved to stick and work faithfully together for our sheepskin we hope to get in '17. We have been discouraged time and time again, only to find ourselves pounding over our studies again with more ambition than ever before, looking forward for the final exams to prove we have mastered our studies and fully prepared and capable to be Seniors.

We are very busy this year, for our importance increases with our age, and our one aim in life is to teach the younger nurses the art of controlling an unconscious patient, as one of our class members has proven that pulling the nose is an excellent remedy.

Our Motto: "Quality, Not Quantity."

Intermediate and Junior Nurses

JUNIOR NURSES' HISTORY

Listen folks! Being editor of the 1918 Class, one of my many duties is to write our class history, and as there is a considerable chasm unfilled between this and last March, to fill it up I can only give a brief sketch of the things and matters as they have passed.

So far we have led an extremely uneventful life, and having only seen the "charitable" side of the work, have had few adventures of a startling nature; consequently you will probably think our little story prosaic and dull.

We have all spent hard days of trouble and toil on M. and F., and have shed the usual amount of Salt Solution that the Normal Prob is relieved of during her time in that "Haven of Rest."

Never will we forget the first time we were sent to the operating room with a patient, requested to wait upon a visiting doctor, or obey the stern command of an interne. My, how we trembled with fear and excitement!

But we do not for these reasons intend to quit or throw aside such important and interesting work, but are determined to forget our daily feelings and trials, and to put to a test our patience and firmness of purpose still to urge us on to keep another purpose. We have formed that of putting the powers of our mind and body to a severe test and of seeing just what we are capable.

The night supervisor has worn out several extra pairs of shoes, and the electrician has been kept busier than ever before repairing bells that she has put out of commission in the "wee sma' hours of the night" in her vain effort to keep awake those who have been, (may I say so fortunate?) as to serve a term on night duty.

We can now distinguish a tongue depressor from a stupe-wringer, as well as various microbes, with the use of a microscope. (Thanks to Dr. Lyons for that). Have a faint conception of the science of the structure of organic bodies; have learned to arise when our Seniors enter a room; also to allow them to precede us when entering the elevator, and go hungry, that they may be fed, and etc. Consequently we feel that we are as capable and could wear the little black hand around our "Crown of Glory" (our cap) with as much grace and dignity as those who have fought the battles and shared the pleasures of old G. W. U. Hospital for three years.

Quite a number of this wide-awake class were laid up in "Dry Docks" for repair after the Christmas festivities, but all are out again; back to their old haunts, diligently striving for our fame, fortune and happiness, which we hope to gain in due time.

So here's hoping we will all be present next March with smiling faces and tired feet to greet the new class.

Sleepy Intern at G. W. U. Hospital, going the rounds after a sleepless night, to a big Irish patient:

"Well, how goes it?"

"It's me breathing, doctor. I can't get me breath at all, at all."

"Well, your pulse is normal. Let me examine your lung-action," replied the doctor, kneeling beside the cot and laying his head on the ample chest.

"Now, let's hear you talk," he continued, closing his eyes and listening.

"What'll Oi be saying, doctor?"

"Oh, say anything. Count one, two, three and up," murmured the intern drowsily.

"Wan, two, three, four, five, six," began the patient. When the young doctor, with a start, opened his eyes he was counting huskily, "Tin hundred an' fifty-six, tin hundred an' fifty-seven, tin hundred and fifty-eight."—Ex.

DENTISTRY

Thirty years ago the Columbian University adopted a baby department, that of Dentistry. Thirty years seems a very long time looking to the future, but when viewed backward, and summing up what has been done, and how the alternate successes and failures, the struggles and the hopes and depressions and the rest, it seems but a span.

In the year 1886 the Dental Department—the baby department—of the Columbian University had its beginning. A conference was held by the Medical Faculty, and Doctors Donaldson, Smythe and Noble, these last gentlemen being at that time the oldest and most reputable dental practitioners in our city. At this conference, upon the recommendation of the dental representatives, Doctors J. Hall Lewis and Henry C. Thompson were appointed to fill the dental chairs of the new school. Dr. Lewis was elected the first Dean of the Dental Faculty. Now, these two gentlemen were rankly green at the work of establishing a department, and as much so at lecture work. Hence it is not difficult to picture the embarrassment under which they endeavored to carry on the work. To give some idea of the undertaking, it may be stated that this work included all dental branches which are now carried on by twenty-seven instructors, and which were at that time taught (?) by these two men and one demonstrator. Between them they had to instruct in Prosthetics, Orthodontia, Operative Dentistry, Dental Pathology, Dental Materia Medica and incidentally some Physiology and Regional Anatomy, all these to be handled by two novices. Well, they had capital, and that was ambition, and they went to work. Strange to say, with all this talent (?) students did not fall over each other to matriculate. Yes, some did come, but sadly few in numbers. It would, however, be well to state that those few were good men who have been successful, for they are now among the most progressive operators of our city. More than this, many of them are actively interested in our department at the present time.

For some time little real progress was made, and the department did not hold a very exalted place, and it was felt very keenly by the teachers, who held themselves responsible for the success of this department. Sometimes this indifference took a very comical phase. At one of the commencements there were only a few graduates. In his address to the classes the then President gave advice to and showered congratulations upon the Medicos (a large class by the way), and praised them to the audience, but not a word to or about the dental graduates, to whom this affair was an epoch in their lives. In the audience sat a lady who felt an interest in the dentists and the department. In consequence she was greatly disappointed when there was no mention made of them at this commencement. Feeling somewhat indignant, she wrote a note to the President expressing her disappointment, and asking why they were ignored. From that time the department received more attention.

There being only two lecturers on dental subjects, it can be well imagined that there was no play. Nevertheless, they determined that by persistent effort time would crown them with success. To get some idea of dental equipment at that time, it may be said that our infirmary could afford only four chairs. It was blessed, however, in the number of clinicians (?); those numbered six of the best and most reputable men in the dental profession in Washington. But, like so many blessings, this had its drawbacks in the fact that these gentlemen were so busy in their offices that it would be hard to recall a single clinic that they ever gave, but that duty was relegated to the two poor lecturers as a diversion. The students in that first year numbered about ten, to accommodate whom there were four old chairs in the infirmary, this being presided over by one demonstrator, Dr. R. Finley Hunt. One item it may be well to mention, the interest being in the contrast with the present. It is that the entire bill for infirmary material that year amounted to $68.60. The progress of the department was remarkably slow, although steady, and each year the former graduates showed greater interest, and willingly gave their services to help lift the burden from the shoulders of the few, for which those lecturers can never adequately express their gratitude. After many ups and more downs, the department came under the present regime of Dr. J. Roland Walton, the present Dean, who seemed to infuse new life into the whole corps of teachers, instructors and students. New equipment to the value of $5,563.00 was installed; infirmary space increased two hundred per cent., and prosthetic laboratories increased to even a greater proportion. This year the student body has reached the highest number—one hundred and ten students—and the teachers and lecturers to manage these classes number twenty-seven. To emphasize the improvement in this department, it would be well to mention the fact that this year the cost of material necessary to carry on the infirmary work amounted to $1,575.00, a very healthy growth for an infant department of thirty years ago everyone must admit. The faculty had a recent meeting, for they have adopted the plan of regular meetings, and appointed a committee to formulate plans, the object of which is to systematize the teaching, more rigid observance of infirmary rules, closer tabulation of students' work, and more rigid scrutiny of infirmary practice. It also enlisted several lecturers among the profession to give special lectures to students and demonstrators. The demonstrators are now about to make arrangements to form a "Black" Club for the purpose of studying the science of cavity preparation, all of which makes one feel that the dental department is now, or soon will be, one of the most progressive of the George Washington University.

This brief resume should not be closed without sounding the praises of the corps of instructors and demonstrators whose praiseworthy zeal has contributed so much to the present success of this department.

SENIOR DENTAL CLASS HISTORY

In the fall of nineteen thirteen, on the twenty-fourth of September, to be exact, there gathered in the lobby of G. W. U. a heterogeneous conglomeration of men and near men from all parts of this great and glorious country of ours, from Maine to California, and beyond—from the Hawaiian Islands and far-away Lithuania. All sizes and dispositions, the short and tall, large and small, both physically and mentally. After employing the services of several volunteer Sherlock Holmeses, we finally assembled in the Histological Lab, and made the acquaintance of our first professor in college, the man who presides in the land of the dead, Dr. "Gentlemen, you've got to git it," Davis. He led us through the many sulci and cavernous sinuses of the human body—through the smells of the dissecting room that to this day are as delicately scented as ever—as we said before, he was our first professor, but in our memories, by no means the least. Next we met Drs. Monroe and Hornaday, the gentlemen who juggle with the atoms and molecules in that very intricate art known as Chem-mystery. Dr. Hornaday led us through the smokes and fumes of the chemical lab in search of that ever-present, but very elusive, unknown. Dr. Stout gave us the sympathetic system. (We hope the Dean has this "system"), and explained what a sandwich and glass of milk does whether you pay for it or not. We have studied bugs, and saw what they will do. We have studied Drugs that will kill you and Drugs that will make you well, and then—Teeth, we've carved them and pulled them, filled them and crowned them, studied them and dreamed them, Forsooth! my kingdom for a tooth! This year we welcomed two new foreign members to our class, one from the cold, dreary plains of Poland, and one from the land of the cherry blossom, and now our representatives encircle the globe, and the class can proudly say that the sun never sets on the homes of the members of the class of nineteen sixteen. We are now nearing our final exams, and realizing how very little we really know. We've had our one big strike, and our banquet, our quartette and our team. We thank our instructors for the many courtesies they have shown us, and we feel that, as a class, we've worked hard and tried to do our level best. Recently two new subjects have been added, and in our darkest moments from all sides we hear that everything will be Black. The sun is slowly setting on our college days; no more will the quartette sing, and the patients in the hospital will rest as before. We will take with us many fond recollections of G. W. U., and we hope our careers will be in keeping with that greatest of all Americans from whom this institution received its name—George Washington.

A native of the mountain state.
Rather good looking and sedate,
When he hangs his shingle out in the bushes,
We extend to him our best wishes.

DR. G. BOROSOUSKY, D. D. S.....Russia

A product of Russia as you can tell,
By the flow of his language and name as well,
A modern expert of teeth and roots—
Is our young friend known as "Dr. Oots."

ERIC HJALMAR BURGESS, $\Psi\Omega$Rhode Island

Junior Class Secy-Treas.

Old King Cole was a sly old soul,
And a sly old soul was he.
He passed his exams by the aid of "crams,"
And thereby got his degree.

ALBERT WENDELL DAVIS, $\Psi\Omega$Tennessee

A little slow as you've all seen,
And wears kid gloves when quizzed by the Dean.
The dear boy's mind is in a whirl,

BERNARD MARTINA DAVIS, $\Psi \Omega$, $\Sigma \Sigma$Maryland

Junior Class Editor

He came from the country where more than the grass is green,
But such a transformation is very seldom seen,
Dances and shows and dinners too, by heck!
But with the pink kimono he got it in the neck.

JOHN FRANCIS EVANSHA.....Pennsylvania

Freshman Class Treasurer

Some people say the Dutch don't amount to much,
This seems to be an unwritten law,
This must be a deception, for we know you'll find an exception,
As this is not the case with Evansha.

ROBERT CAMPBELL McCULLOUGH, $\Psi \Omega$Illinois

Senior Vice-President

"Mac" is an earnest worker,
And honest all day long,
We expect him to be way out in front,
When the Dean clangs the gong.

GEORGE MORTIMER FRAZIER, $\Psi \Omega$,
District of Columbia

Junior Class Vice-President

"Hiram" is a great big chap,
With a heart as pure as gold,
And you never find him hanging 'round
Where "scab beer" is sold.

Senior Class President

Peter of Hyattsville, the "squire" of that land,
He conducts class meetings with a masterful hand,
Things are all good and well till Cohen butts in,
And then all the class can do is just sit there and grin.

PATTERSON BAYNE JOHNSTONE, $\Psi\Omega$Virginia

Johnstone from the B. C. D. S.
The oldest Dental School,
While he does not happen to be the best,
Is by no means the biggest fool.

PAUL EDWARD JOHNSTONE.....Virginia

Johnstone, from Loudon County, Virginia—
He says—The garden spot of the world,
And there'll be something doing
When he gets that diploma unfurled.

WALTER N. JOHNSON, $\Delta\Sigma\Delta$Tennessee

There's a sweet-heart waiting for him,
Down in Sunny Tennessee,
And he's mighty good looking,
And as nice as nice can be.

JOSEPH ALOYSIUS LYNCH, $K\Sigma$New York

He came from along the Hudson,
Not far from Broadway—
And we hope he'll be successful,
In his "artistic pulling" way.

CLARENCE ROBERT MOORE, $\Psi\Omega$Maryland

Junior Class President

Senior Class Editor

Editor Dental School "University Hatchet" and
"Cherry Tree"

From Old Virginia and a credit to the State,
An earnest student, liked by each classmate,
His sheepskin to him is his dearest desire,
And after he has it, he'll set things on fire.

JOHN EDWARD MORGAN, $\Psi\Omega$, District of Columbia

He is some student,
But prosthesis, that's the thing,
In the lab he entertains us,
If he hasn't a joke he'll sing.

WILLIAM JOSEPH O'BRIEN, $\Psi\Omega$, Connecticut

"Chick" is a true college chappie,
Always good natured and happy—
He loves the ladies and such—
Everybody will say as much,
So success is sure for the Irish.

DR. MITSURA O'KADA, D. D. S., Japan

Dr. O'Kada, the man from Japan,
Is working for his P. G.,
So to represent us in his foreign land,
We hope he gets his degree.

JOHN HEBB SHADRICK, $\Psi\Omega$, Maryland

Spare ribs! Oh spare ribs, what's in a name,
You are so very studious and of course will win fame,
When first you saw the light of day, they thought you were too thin,
Hairs from your head were placed on your lips,
but should have been on the chin.

EDWIN LEARY STEIN, $\Psi\Omega$, Washington

For three years he's been down to biz,
And has never flopped in any quiz,
We all wish "Crabby" lots of luck,
For he has certainly shown that he has pluck.

WILLIAM ERNEST STUTZMAN, $\Phi \Sigma \kappa$, $\Psi \Omega$,
District of Columbia
Interfraternity Delegate

"Stutz" has gained a reputation
Of never being on time,
But on commencement night,
We expect him to be in line.

WILLIAM MANLY SWEET, $\Psi \Omega$, District of Columbia

He was tattered, he was torn,
He showed signs of being worn,
But now he's feeling better,
So he's dropped that look forlorn.

ALBERT WILLIAM WILLIARD, LL. D., $\Psi \Omega$, Maine
Senior Class Secy. and Treas.

This is our attorney,
Who will do business in a Dental way,
For unlike the most of that profession,
He has very little to say.

MYRON WEBSTER WILSON, $\Psi \Omega$,
District of Columbia

Willie Westinghouse Edison, number two,
Anything about electricity, he can tell you,
As an inventor he's sure to win,
For he can make a silver plate and line it with tin.

MAY WOLFE.....District of Columbia
Freshman Class Secretary

The one co-ed and wonderfully wise (?)
If it wasn't for that she would win a prize.
When it comes to theory she don't have to bluff,
For she candidly admits she knows the stuff.

JUNIOR

A. P. STARR

JUNIOR DENTAL CLASS HISTORY

After having passed our many hard examinations in our Freshman year and convincing our many professors that we were capable of carrying the burdens of Juniors, the class met for the first time on September 29th, 1915. After roll call we found that four of our members had left us for other schools; Mr. Hooper attending school at Atlanta, Plugge and Diaz at University of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Heald at Tuft's College. While missing these students very much, we hope that they will have great success where they are, and also hope that we might see them at some future time.

Before many days the political "bosses" were "buzzing" around the class and at our first class meeting we elected the most worthy gentleman, Paul Sherwood Gilliam, as our leader. As he hails from Norfolk, Va., we know that he will be an able leader.

The class has a fine "indoor sport" in Organic Chemistry, and the way the class play the game it will be a great success. "Coach" Horgan claims that he will have a good team for Dr. Hornaday by the end of the year, and here's hoping the fellows will train, because the class knows no defeat as yet.

February first we went against our Bacteriology examination, and it was "some" exam. Dr. Lyons had better show his love for the dental class when he corrects the papers, because the class, as a whole, feel as though their minds were dull that night. (Except "Spirochetes" Bowen).

Now that the second half-year is under way, we are all down to the hard grind again. Always looking ahead for the Senior year and the approaching Senior class of the Dean's, which we understand is hard. By the time this book goes to press we will be about to the end of our Junior year, and it has been shown that the class contains a lot of "pep," and also a goodly share of hard workers. Our great desire is to gain our coveted D. D. S., and all our thoughts are centered in that direction.

FRESHMAN

A. P. STARR

CLASS HISTORY OF DENTAL FRESHMAN CLASS 1915-1916

Representing States from Maine to California, a group of young men, numbering fifty-seven in all, were honored by being admitted to the George Washington University Dental Department. This gathering of knowledge-hungry men soon dwindled down to forty-one, and we have good reason to believe that the achievements of these men have surpassed those of its predecessors and have set a pace which its successors will find difficult to equal.

The first and most natural event of the class was to elect an executive and inferior officers. The following were elected: Mr. Henry Clay Lowry, of Detroit, Mich., President; Mr. John Blake Copping, of Prince George's County, Md., Vice-President; Mr. John Armstead Boston, of Warrenton, W. Va., Treasurer; Mr. Michael Harris, of Rhode Island, Secretary, and Mr. Roger Allen Brown, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, Class Reporter.

Upon becoming familiar with our surroundings and our initial examinations drawing near, our second step in the framing of the class constitution was to adopt the "Honor System," with an "Honor Committee" having the power to enforce its principles. This committee is composed of the following: Mr. Edwards, chairman; Mr. Lowry, Mr. Keroes, Mr. Frank and Mr. Brown. We are proud to state that this committee has had very little opportunity to exercise its power. The class has stormed through a dozen examinations with great success.

The Freshmen Dental Class of 1915-16 will hold a banquet in the near future, which will create a further brotherly feeling, and will encourage the slogan, "On to Our Junior Year."

PHARMACY

HISTORY OF THE COLLEGE OF PHARMACY

The National College of Pharmacy, which is the outgrowth of the Columbian Pharmaceutical Association, organized in April, 1871, was chartered under the provisions of an act of Congress in 1872, and opened its doors to students November 11 of that year. In February, 1906, it became a member of the educational system of the George Washington University. The President of the University is ex-officio President of the National College of Pharmacy, and the College is represented in the Presidents' Council by its Dean.

The George Washington University National College of Pharmacy has many advantages not possessed by other colleges of pharmacy. Its location in Washington, its extensive curriculum, its careful management, and its experienced faculty unite in producing it an idealistic standard.

Thorough efficiency in the management of the affairs of the College is obtained by the manner in which it is governed. The members of the College are the leading pharmacists of the District of Columbia, men who are thoroughly conversant with the demands and requirements of the profession. From this body twelve trustees are selected for terms of three years each, four trustees being elected each year in June. The trustees keep in close contact with the affairs of the College by frequent meetings given over exclusively to the administration of College matters. With the classes of the College averaging twenty-five to thirty-five students, it follows that great individuality of instruction is obtained.

The building itself, a three-story and basement structure, designed and built in accordance with the ideas of the Board of Trustees, is used for educational purposes only. Each laboratory is amply equipped with modern apparatus and appliances for demonstrations and experimental work.

The demand for the services of graduates of the College is in excess of the supply. The scope of its course, combined with the thoroughness with which it is taught, produce qualities sought and appreciated by proprietors, managers and manufacturers, and no graduate ever has difficulty in securing lucrative employment, a condition which speaks most favorably for the College.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

The Senior Class was organized as a class on November 26, 1916, and the following officers elected:

PAUL DAVIS.....	President
JAMES KELLEY.....	Vice-President
JAMES DUDLEY.....	Treasurer
ARCHIE PAINTER.....	Secretary
G. VAIL MINICK.....	Historian and Editor

The latter being elected on March 9, 1916, and also elected College Editor on March 9, 1916.

Not much class activity has been displayed thus far, but what was undertaken was very well attended. Soon after the class was organized a theater party was held, and the class attended to the man. Just after the Keith Theater Party a small banquet was held, at which a few speeches were made. The class quartette gave a few songs, which was much enjoyed, the quartette being composed of Davis, Payewski, Minick, Dudley.

On February 4, 1916, the class took a trip to the National Vaccine and Antitoxin Institute, making a thorough examination of their laboratories, and many important facts were pointed out, which will always be a help to each one taking the trip.

Much interest has been taken on the part of the members of the class in bowling. Two bowling teams are listed, and each Tuesday evening they meet, and the losing team agreeing to banquet the class at the end of the year.

The class is doing much to raise the standard of pharmaceutical preparations as sold in Washington. Each week several samples of various things bought from drug stores are analyzed, and their strength noted. If they are above or below par, the people are notified. When the class is graduated the world will receive that many good, efficient, practical pharmacists.

FRESHMAN CLASS HISTORY

The muse inspires, I seize my pen,
The words are full of life and flame
And you, good reader, soon shall ken
How Pharmacy—'18, rose to fame.

Mark thee these words well, gentle reader, for in them is told happenings of great moment, for like all properly run classes the officers were chosen first, and these were, Stevens Hughes, President; J. D. McIntyre, Vice-President; L. M. Postun, Secretary; R. Raymond Bjorgo, Treasurer; and M. S. Schwartz, Class Editor.

And to celebrate the joyous occasion of the Class's organization "Steve" Hughes entertained the class with a smoker and the "Bunch" and the faculty came forth in mighty array.

Then in betwix't work and study came several enjoyable social evenings, with the Messrs. Lawrence Taylor, M. S. Schwartz, and Wallis A. Fuhrman as hosts, and wit and humor ran rampant.

Thus we come to the Christmas Holidays, when under the able supervision of Ralph Dean, "Larry" Taylor and Kang Li our Christmas Dance transpired and the comely faces and nimble toes attested to the popularity of "our boys" and a real Christmas Tree heavily hung with gifts made the occasion all the merrier.

A Class Pin was chosen and now adorns the manly bosom of each member of the Class, which also presented one to our beloved, Dean Kalusowski.

Lawrence Taylor again entertained the Class and the "Freshman Prom" was participated in most loyally.

And so come we to an end, for lack of space, and coming must omit many and sundry noble deeds, but would'st thou ever think of any Class, that though small has tried to be no insignificant part of this great University, then would'st thou think of

DEPARTMENT OF VETERINARY MEDICINE

The veterinary department is the youngest department of the University, and since its inception, progress has been the chief slogan. More fortunate than many schools of similar character, from the beginning it had access to the well-equipped laboratories of the Department of Chemistry and Medicine.

Up until 1912 this department required only three years' work to complete the course. But owing to the rapid advancement of veterinary medicine in this country, and in order to maintain the high standard recommended by both the American Veterinary Medical Association and the United States Department of Agriculture, the board of trustees deemed it wise to establish a four-year course in veterinary medicine, commencing with the 1912-13 session. And this year's senior class is its first four-year product. The result will only be seen after these men have shown their ability and dexterity by an extra year's work. This University set a precedent by being the first in the United States to adopt a four-year course, and others have followed, since they deemed it the proper thing to do. At first it looked as though the four-year course would be very detrimental to the matriculation in this department, as other colleges, especially private colleges in this country, objected to raising their courses to four years. But it has proved the contrary; the number of matriculants has increased considerably even under the four-year régime.

The opportunities for clinic and collateral training in veterinary medicine in this department are unexcelled, having Fort Meyer, Bethesda and Beltsville Experiment Stations and the various government farms at their disposal, as well as the various libraries and government departments, all of which help to train our men in a thorough and decisive way.

The faculty of twenty-two members, together with three well-equipped hospitals, insure a thorough training in both laboratory and clinical work.

The graduates of the College of Veterinary Medicine are eligible to membership in the American Veterinary Medical Association. They are also eligible to service in the United States Department of Agriculture and the United States Army after passing the required examinations.

These few facts merely serve to indicate that the Veterinary Department is fully cognizant of the wide field of usefulness to which its graduates may be called, and the increasing responsibilities which must be borne by them in the scientific realm which they are to enter.

Senior Veterinary Class

Being the first four-year class, we naturally feel quite elated over the fact, and sincerely hope our efforts have been well spent in an endeavor to cover the field of veterinary medicine in a way which will better fit us for the service of which we are to partake.

Our Freshman year was a glorious year. We were all downhearted and nearly heartbroken from the first time we imbibed in histology and a few other subjects equally as baffling. But we were a faithful nine who stuck the first year's work out.

The following year we added a member, the third year two other members, and then began sailing on in our sea of toil and worry together to form the first four-year class in the United States. (So we claim the championship for four-year men this year). Who disputes it?

We have a very cosmopolitan talented crowd. Nearly every individual has some branch at which he is particularly adapted, especially on the entertainment end of a good time. But then we also have two Doctors of Philosophy, if you will notice.

Grubb was made president, and he is the "watchful waiting" kind. He is so quiet he hates to get the boys together for a meeting, fearing their noise may arouse the latent knowledge which they (are supposed to) have, and they would all finish with honors which might not look well. "Yes, he's conservative," and Lynn, he always feels hurt if he can't play leading role in a surgery quiz.

Our trip to the various stock farms, abattoirs, dairies, Fort Meyer and elsewhere have always been a source of great delectation, and, moreover a decided benefit, especially to the boys who thought "steers" were a separate and distinct breed of horses.

We have sought the key to familiarizing ourselves with the best way to get along and get the most out of our college career, and we found it in "Harmony." Our relations with the professors have been ones of many pleasures, along with many a stormy session. And we are egotistical enough to believe our stock stands high with most of them. We had our troubles in the Freshman year; then got through to our Sophomore year, which brought physiology (and many a smile), along with many an hour of study. And physiology was not the only subject which made us stay up late enough to miss breakfast.

The class has worked hard as a whole, and a few of its members have worked under big difficulties, but it is our most sincere wish that each and every one shall reap his just harvest for his hard and conscientious work and power to stay.

It is to be hoped this class will make history for the school, and if their plans go through, there will be no doubt of it.

Here's to the Class of '16, and long may her men continue to do good work.

WILLIAM NATHAN BERG, Ph. D. New York
Sigma Xi

Joined us in our Sophomore year. We know little of his past history except that he got his Ph. D. degree at Columbia. He has great ideas of "Frenzied Finance," i. e. making false teeth for horses and automatic hobbles. Also very adept at finding exostoses on equine patients. Has written some very interesting and instructive bulletins which are extensively published. We predict he will be heard from later.

HARRY JAMES BIONDI. District of Columbia
Omega Tau Sigma
"Buck" "Hank"

Class President 1913-14.

Buck was raised in the South East and knows that section from A to Z. A hard worker. Showed pathognomonic symptoms of a love for music when a youngster. In fact he has a craze for classical music. If you don't think so just ask John Philip Sousa about Buck and the grand opera music he took a fancy for when a youngster. We could say a lot more things very nice about him, but watch him, he will produce the goods according to all predictions. For he is made of the right stuff.

Here's to you, Buck.

HERBERT HYDE BROWN. Missouri
"Brownie"

Class President 1912-13.

V. M. A. Vice-Pres. 1913-14. V. M. A. Pres. 1914-15.

Claims St. Louis of the "Show me" State as his native heath. Has travelled over most of the Western Hemisphere from Alaska to Mexico and from 'Frisco to Washington. A good fellow is "Dad" Brown and he has our good wishes.

KENNETH EARL BUFFIN. Maryland
Omega Tau Sigma

"Kennie" "Kebbins" "Buff"

Class Pres. 1914-15. Class Sec.-Editor 1913-14.

Class Vice-President 1912-13.

Kennie, a pleasant blond, always smiling. Quite a fellow for the ladies (Guess we had better make that singular). A good student and a popular fun maker. Countrv raised but thoroughly city broke. Guess he will work well in double harness. We are expecting good things of him.

WILLIAM HUGH GRUBB. Virginia
Omega Tau Sigma.

"Hugie"

Class President. Class Treasurer 1913-14.

Bo'n and raised in "Ole Vi'ginia" always on the alert for good things for the Old Dominion. Has a farm and farms it some. A judge of good horses and miscellaneous things which our ethics do not permit us to mention. A practitioner at heart. In fact has a practice in the blastula stage waiting for him in his native Blue Ridge country near the "Trail of the lone-some pine." He will make good.

MAURICE CROWTHER HALL, S. B. M. A. Ph. D.
Colorado

Sigma Xi. Phi Beta Kappa.
"Hall"

V. M. A. President.

Hails from Colorado Springs, Colorado and knew it as a pioneer. Never happy unless chasing some kind of bug. He is always in demand as a speaker, and a Toastmaster he is par excellence. The kind of a fellow one likes to have around. What he intends to do we know not as he is in demand, but whatever it is we know it will be thoroughly done as is characteristic of this noble fellow.

WILLIAM MUNROE LYNN.....North Carolina
"Mun" "Uncle Mun."

F'om No'th Ca'olina; jes growed up th'ah somewha'h nea'h the home of "Bull Du'ham." A smiling son of the Sunny South; always a pleasure to have him about. And a lover of some repute. Should have taken Theology if we are to believe in his views of what he should have done. But we suspect he will make a better man at the profession he has chosen. Intends to practice in North Carolina. May he prosper.

JOSEPH BRIGGS MUNRO.....Rhode Island

Not a Rhode Island Red but Rhode Island bred and married too. A chemist. Was to have finished in 1914 but illness necessitated his dropping out and again coming back so as to become a Senior in a better class; '16. A pleasant fellow whose energies are to be admired. Says he likes to camp out. Intends to practice in Rhode Island.

CHARLES WILLIAM RIPPON.....Pennsylvania

Omega Tau Sigma

"Rip" (Should have been called "Wild Bill").
Class Secretary-Editor

Class Sec.-Ed., 1914-15. Class Sec.-Ed. 1912-13.
V. M. A. Seargent A. A. 1912-13. V. M. A. Treas. 1912-13.
V. M. A. Secretary 1915-16.

This handsome young man hails from Jermyn, Pa., and has a wide reputation as a poultry fancier and judge of the following varieties of chickens: Rhode Island Reds, Pit Games, F. Streets, and "Broilers." Rip expects to practice, and we believe that he will demonstrate that "Practice makes perfect."

ANDREW JAMES SIPOS.....Virginia

Omega Tau Sigma

"Andy" "Tony" "Major"

Class Treasurer.

Another representative from the Tidewater peanut region of the Old Dominion. A small animal practitioner of no mean ability and rather specializes on cats at times. Has risen in rank until he is familiarly known as "Major." Expects to practice in Virginia and, if you can accept our word, he will make good regardless of where he lands.

CHARLES DAVID SKIPPON.....Pennsylvania
"Skip"

Joined the "Benedicts" during the summer of his Junior year. We must admire his courage in that respect. Raised near York, Pa., and has expressed a desire to practice there. Which means that the livestock in that section will get good attention. Has a great sense of humor. And a theory that we could identify bacteria by the Bertillion system; he claims this as a specialty.

CLAUDE THIGPEN.....Alabama

Raised in Lowndes County, Alabama, and very conservative. Has a great liking for the Philippines where he spent several years. Took his Freshman year two years previous to joining our class as a Sophomore. Is especially good at restraint and would make an unusual dashing type of cowboy, with quite uncommon technique in the control of wild cattle. Always ready for ambulatory clinics. Has expressed a desire to practice in Alabama.

FLOYD PERCY WILCOX.....New York
 Omega Tau Sigma

"Willie" "Percy" "Vilcok"

Class Vice-Pres. V. M. A. Sec. 1914-15.
 Athletic Ass'n Assistant Financial Secretary.

Hails from Binghamton, N. Y. Seems to have an attraction in his native State which holds his heart, but his mind is evidently on his studies if we are to judge by his enthusiasm. Always alert to work. Quite an impromptu speaker and strong on minute descriptions of different anatomical dissections. the Azygos uvulae for instance. We hope he hits the ideals he has set for himself and judging by his past he will.

We that were twelve are now but six, six battle-scarred veterans, tried and true, in the fight for a degree in Veterinary Medicine. What have we not undergone since that memorable evening of the 29th day of September, 1913, when Doctor Buckingham, with cajoling words, welcomed us as members of his family, pointed out the glorious future before us, and lured us on into the struggle.

The end of the first year found our ranks broken—we were badly bent to say the least! Only four of the original twelve had survived the terrors of chemistry, histology, anatomy, materia medica—all those subjects that make the life of a poor Freshman one continual nightmare.

The next fall two husky recruits joined our ranks from other schools and we buckled down to work with renewed vigor. That second year was really an iridescent dream of opalescent hue, as compared with the multitudinous strenuositities of our Freshman year, yet even here we encountered obstacles. Physiology had us "buffaloed," and one of our number stumbled and almost fell amidst the labyrinthine mazes encompassing the floor of the fourth ventricle.

And so our third year finds us. We are over the divide, but far from over our troubles. Our thoughts take a sombre hue as we think of all that is yet to come, but "ad astra per aspera" is our motto, so just wait another year and look out for the day when the class of 1917 blossoms forth upon the unsuspecting veterinary world.

VETERINARY SOPHOMORES

The Class of 1918 began its career twenty-five strong. Our versatility was put to a test during the first year. We turned with apparent ease from the Twelve Phyla, the recapitulation of Phylogeny by Ontogeny and the pursuit of the lacertilia of the deserts of North Carolina to the Compound Raceme as exemplified by Smilacina Racemosa. No hesitation was shown in prescribing Magnesium Sulphate and Sodium Sulphate by the drachm and Atropine and Eserine by the ounce. That cut on page 75 was microscopically examined, and it was generally agreed that Mr. Sisson was perfectly right; after which we verified his statements about muscles, from the levator labii superioris proprius to the insertion of the perforans of the pelvic limb. We convinced ourselves that yellow elastic connective tissue fibers do branch, anastomose and curl at the ends; we looped the Loop of Henle, and covered a good deal of the Area Pellucida. We marvelled at the wonderful Table of Mendeleeff, and digested the Laws of Berthollet.

Each subject developed its own star; Johnson shone in Chemistry; Carl in Zoology, and Lanahan and his Crew in Anatomy. Oyster kept everybody awake.

The end of the Freshman year found sixteen of the original twenty-five more or less battered and tattered, but still in the ring.

When work began the second year fourteen started with it. Woodson and Rowan did not return, and Lanahan's Crew was disbanded. Horseshoeing and Dentistry replaced Zoology; Pharmacy replaced Botany, and Physiology replaced Histology. Feeds, Breeds and Milk also came in for their share of our attention. In February it was our misfortune to lose Carl, our lizard expert, and it is doubtful if a satisfactory substitute can be developed. Two new stars now shine, Anatomy being an open book to Hines, and Breeds appealing particularly to Seymour, who is an authority on the "Dual Purpose Type."

As the year draws to a close we are learning several definitions and three different classifications of the carbohydrates, and hope that by springing Dr. E's on Dr. E, Dr. H's on Dr. H, and Dr. G's on Dr. G, everybody will be happy.

None can tell what history may record about us for the next two years, or how many will be with us, but our determination to hang on varies inversely as our numerical strength.

FRESHMAN CLASS

We are the merry vet—rin—ary
Class of the year '19;
And we have a hunch, we're as bright a bunch
As the fak—ul—tee has seen!

This year our freshman class has honored George Washington University with the largest class in the history of the Veterinary College, the increase being second to but one other branch of the University, the number of students enrolled being 30. Barometrically speaking, our enthusiasm ranges anywhere from 1 to 70—for Chemistry, Zoology and Botany do not permit of much enthusiasm—especially Chemistry. Professor Monroe sees to that!

The grind of college life is now on in earnest, and exams are coming thick and fast, until, to us at least, it seems that life is just one exam after another. Fearful affairs, too, some of them,—causing us to approach the dreaded day with fear and trembling, praying to God, but prepared for the worst.

However, examinations have not absorbed all of our time. Several members of our class were, for a while, seriously thinking of joining the college militia, but were finally dissuaded by some of the more peaceful ones who considered them malicious enough as they were. But speaking of preparedness reminds me of our one athletic aspiration of the year,—an aspiration that unfortunately was destined to be washed in the seas of despair and dashed on the rocks of destruction like a lamb being led to slaughter! But alas! 'twas ever thus. It was on the first day of November that we received from the United States College of Veterinary Medicine a very insolent challenge to a game of football which was, so the challenge read, to take place on Thanksgiving Day. We, of course, valiant warriors that we are, replied immediately and with such enthusiasm that it seemed to have utterly disheartened them, for they sent back word that "Mercy, no! they were too proud to fight, and, besides, they were not prepared, and many of them did not favor such violent sport!"

However, we were more fortunate in the matter of our semi-annual class banquet, which was held during the month of January at the Capital Park Hotel. Practically the entire class was present, and festivities only concluded at a very, very late hour. Speeches were indulged in with more or less success, while songs were lustily sung by the class en masse, to Mr. Romberger's inspiring piano accompaniment. And now for those who have mastered the difficulties that have filled our path. Some fought, and wavered and fell; others have hung on and on, refusing to be conquered by mere books or instructors, until now our battered 26 can at last be safely said to be well on the road to success.

Psi Omega

PSI OMEGA

The Psi Omega Dental Fraternity was first organized at the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery in 1892, and since its beginning has had as its chief aim the elevation of the profession and the encouragement of scientific research along the lines of dentistry.

Since the organization nearly thirty chapters have been established in various dental colleges throughout the United States, and the alumni chapters number about twenty-six.

Beta Gamma Chapter of George Washington was founded in February, 1903, by Drs. C. L. Constantini, E. R. Hagan, E. E. Belford and A. B. Crane.

The fraternity is governed by a triennial convention called the Grand Chapter, together with a recess board known as the Supreme Council.

KAPPA PSI

The Kappa Psi Fraternity was founded May 30, 1879, at New Haven, Conn., and was incorporated in 1903, as a National Medical and Pharmaceutical organization. Since the date of founding the fraternity has grown, until today it has fifty-three active collegiate chapters, this number being greater than that enjoyed by any other professional fraternity now in existence.

The local chapter, Beta-Lambda, was installed on December 20, 1913, by the Delta Chapter of the University of Maryland, Baltimore.

The Chapter has fifteen active members, representing all classes in the Medical School.

"To bring us closer together as engineers, and as fellow-students; and give us useful thoughts as both." This, concisely speaking, is the purpose of our Society. And throughout the year we have sought to make this the fundamental note in all our meetings and gatherings. True, it was found necessary to study closely the mechanics of manipulating a hot doggie and a mug of cider with a compound motion over a small interval of time, but this was merely incident to learning something interesting and instructive about our chosen profession.

The usual interest and enthusiasm was evidenced at the election of officers, the above slate being chosen. At our opening meeting Dr. Hodgkins, who is as much an integral part of our Society as the name itself, gave us one of his characteristic talks concerning the value of a broad understanding of men as a vital factor in engineering work. Special appeals were sent to each freshman engineering student, asking his support for the Society, and the response speaks well for that class, over fifty men being present at the meeting. We deeply appreciate the courtesy of those fraternities who have extended us the use of their houses.

The first week in December we visited the Bureau of Standards, and, considering the inclement weather, had a good representation. The supper, as usual, was excellent. In addition to many other interesting scientific features, the paper-making and rubber manufacturing machines were operated for us, with a thoroughness of explanation that left a deep impression of their processes with us.

As soon after the mid-years as possible, considering the mental anguish of some of our members, we met and thoroughly enjoyed a splendid lecture by Prof. Dougherty on "The History of Engineering." He showed us that, after all, the fellow who had the contract to build the Pyramids had a real job on his hands.

When you speak of this Society you at the same time think of the banquet, because at this function there is as much good-fellowship and good speaking, not to mention good menu, as at any similar gathering in University life. This year was no exception. All of the points were strictly observed; our guests being President Stockton, Dean Hodgkins, Dean Munroe and Major Otwell, United States Corps of Engineers. We were fortunate in securing a member of the service to speak to us at a time when preparedness was an issue of paramount importance. Those who heard him will never forget his Spanish proverb.

We shall make several trips to various manufacturing concerns and power plants this spring; that to Maryland Steel Company with Dr. Munroe being our final objective. Then we will break up with a last "blow-out" during commencement week, which, in the vernacular of the county engineer (?), is a "humdinger."

And a word of confident hope; yes, even a prophecy. If every member of this Society will always keep clearly before him the high ambition of our organization, taking out with him a spirit of friendliness and co-operation among his fellows, he will be doing himself and his Society a lasting service; and The Engineering Society will continue to increase as a vital factor in George Washington life.

MISS T. KARGER,

L. F. W. PAHL.

C. R. BRENEMAN.

Since the organization of the Chemical Society, in 1909, it has grown in membership and activity, until now it is one of the leading organizations of the school.

The meetings held during the past year have had two objects in view; first, the primary object for the existence of the Society, the propagation of the knowledge of chemistry, and, second, the bringing of the members of the various classes in chemistry into closer relationship. In order to accomplish this aim the social feature has been emphasized without, however, neglect to the numerous lectures and trips of inspection.

The year's activities started in October with a talk of unusual interest and meaning, on recent explosions in this country, by Dr. Munroe.

Two events of importance marked the month of November. A lecture on "The Bacteriology of the Soil," by Mr. Leonard, and a trip of inspection of the prohibitionists to Christian Heurich's Brewery.

Glass, sulphuric acid and maple sugar were separately discussed by Messrs. Cathcart, Brattain and Snyder, respectively, at the December meeting.

At the January meeting the Society was very sorry to receive the resignation of Mr. P. J. Donk as President, due to his non-attendance at the University this year. A paper was read by Mr. Breneman on "Chemistry of Photography."

The February trip to the works of the Washington Gas Light Company was attended by a large crowd of students. Mr. Custis read a paper on "Chloracetic Acid," and Mr. Reuben Schmidt was elected President at the regular meeting of that month.

The banquet held on February 21 at the University Club was a great success, thanks to Mr. Fogle.

We might enumerate several more pages of activities of this live Society, but our space is limited.

So in closing we dedicate this page to our esteemed Professor Charles E. Munroe, and to a professor who has sacrificed much and worked hard in the interest of the Society, Professor Ottis Dow Swett.

THE RIDING CLUB

About October 22 there was started the movement to organize a riding club to join the Washington Group of back-to-the-saddle enthusiasts by Mr. Carl M. J. Von Zielinski, an alumnus of this University and a graduate reputable military school of this country, who gave those G. W. U. students who desired it his expert advice in the art of riding without financial compensation.

The matchless scenery, good roads and numerous bridle paths about Washington offered unusual inducements to those persons interested in this kind of sport. It is not the intention of the Club to make it an exclusive affair for the wealthy, but to point out the many advantages horse-back riding has to offer and to have a Club composed of congenial, democratic group to take trips into the neighboring country as often as possible.

The first trip was taken about October 23, through the country of Old Dominion; the party being led by Mr. Von Zielinski. The second trip was taken the following Sunday through Clarendon and Fort Myer returning to Washington by way of the Highway Bridge. On the Sunday, November 7, the Club divided into two parties and made a tour of Rock Creek Park. The Wednesday preceding this Sunday a party of night riders was organized and a ride through Virginia was taken. Thanksgiving morning the back-to-the-saddle devotees engineered a paper chase in which 30 men and women hunters participated, among whom were a number of our students. Misses Theodosia Walter and her friend were the first to arrive at the death of the "fox."

Following shortly upon the heels of this spirited chase, the group received word from the Hearst-Selig motion picture company to stage one for their weekly. This event was staged in Rock Creek Park near Pierce's Mill with a full attendance of the members from this College and the Washington Club.

After a few more shorter trips Mr. Von Zielinski was ordered from Washington by executive officials, he being in the consular service, and Mr. Charles Kothe voluntarily took charge of the Club so as to keep up the good work which was temporarily severed by the departure of Mr. Von Zielinski.

The Architectural Club of George Washington University was formed among the students of architecture during the college year of 1912-'13, and has a present membership of thirty-two, and holds meetings monthly. The purposes of forming this club were to promote closer companionship among its members, and to aid each other in their college work. The Architectural Club has not only carried out these purposes for its individual welfare, but has also extended into other branches for the promotion of the University, as can be seen in the annual publications of the Cherry Tree. As in former issues, this edition of the Cherry Tree is illustrated by the members of the Architectural Club, namely: Benson, Carpenter, Daidy, Edwards, Farmham, Freemire, Glasebrook, Harris, Offutt and Starr. The work of these ten artists consists of fifty illustrations, fifteen of which are the full-page drawings of Cherry Tree (frontispiece)—Arts and Sciences, Engineering, Architecture, Teachers' College, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Veterinary, Nurses' School, Fraternities, Sonorities, Organizations, Athletics, and thirty-five small headings of Engineering Classes, Architectural Classes, Law Classes, Medical Classes, Dental Classes, Pharmaceutical Classes, Veterinary Classes, Pre-Medical Class, Glee Club, Architectural Club, Engineering Society, Chemical Society, Pyramid Honor Society, Sphinx Honor Society, Debate, Rifle Team and Coast Artillery Company.

SPHINX HONOR SOCIETY

The Sphinx Honor Society of George Washington University was organized in 1912 for the purpose of promoting high scholarship and interest in college activities among the women students of the University. Its membership is limited to seven, proportioned among the three upper classes. Only such women students as have had a high scholastic record and have participated actively in college affairs are elected to membership. The present membership is as follows:

JOANNA ELIZABETH BEST, President

MARGARET MORTON KNOWLES, Secretary-Treasurer

Since its organization in the fall of 1914 by David Davis and Maurice Herzmark, the Orchestra has been a decided success.

The first public appearance was in the nature of a Concert held for the benefit of the suffering Belgians. Music was furnished both for entertainment and for dancing at the "Mixers" held by the W. U. C. The Orchestra scored a great success in its rendition of music for the School Play, "Sweet Lavender."

This, the second season of its existence has been even more successful than the first, music having been furnished for the class "Mixers," and for the Dramatic Association Plays.

Sections of the Orchestra have also furnished music for many of the fraternity dances and other socials.

With the advent of football into the Athletics, the time is looked forward to when the Orchestra may be extended into a Band to render music at the big games.

The roster of the Orchestra follows:

DAVID DAVIS, Cornet
 J. P. BUCHANAN, Cornet
 MAURICE HERZMARK, Piano
 HANS JOERGENSEN, Cornet
 A. KAMINSKY, Violin
 J. H. PATRICK, Clarinet
 F. SCHUSSEL, Trombone
 ADOLPH SCHLICHTING, Clarinet
 EDWARD W. STITT, Violin
 I. SEMSKER, Cornet
 W. H. TONNE, Baritone Saxophone
 JAMES A. WATZMAN, Violin
 WILLIAM HYMAN, Trombone

THE INTERFRATERNITY ASSOCIATION

Nineteen hundred and sixteen finds the Interfraternity Association firmly and permanently established in the University. This, its sixth year, has been a most successful one, and has given opportunity for the Association to carry further into effect its purpose, as incorporated in its constitution, namely, "To bring the fraternities of the University closer together, and to promote student activities." The Association is composed of thirteen delegates, one from each of the fraternities represented in George Washington.

Monthly meetings are held at the various fraternity houses, enabling the men to get closer together, and thereby promoting harmony among the chapters. The power of the Association is limited by its constitution. It cannot regulate "Rushing," and must submit all of its decisions to the various chapters to be acted upon. It is encouraging to note that the chapters and the Association have always worked in perfect unison. The faculty has also come to recognize the Interfraternity Association as the real representative of organized fraternalism within the University.

The social life of the Association, with its annual smoker and promenade, affords the Greek letter men great opportunity to display their Lord Fauntleroy manners and encourages good fellowship.

Athletics have been the foremost question this year, and the Association has played a big part in reviving the sports. The Interfraternity relay race and bowling leagues have done wonders towards furthering athletics of the University. Also the baseball league and the tennis tournament, formed last year, have created great enthusiasm.

ATHLETICS

GEORGE A DAIDY.

Athletic Association Officers and Basket Ball Coach

ATHLETICS

Despite the lack of competitive success in athletics, this year has been a most important one. It has been a year of constant progress, which has finally culminated in re-establishing football here. Basketball, track and football have been put on the soundest basis they have ever been, the students have shown more active support, and have manifested a greater degree of college spirit than heretofore, and the adoption of the student tax insures the financial success. In short, the athletic rejuvenation of George Washington is practically complete, and from this time on the Buff and Blue will be seen assuming its rightful place in the realm of intercollegiate sport.

The fight for the resumption of football has been an arduous and, at times, a seemingly hopeless one, but by persistent and unselfish effort on the part of the faithful few success has finally been attained. The importance of this achievement cannot be underrated, for, in the minds of all far-sighted people, it will unquestionably be of the utmost benefit to the University. Not only will it make George Washington better known and appreciated; not only will it bring more students and add to the University's prestige; not only will it make many friends and supporters in the outside world, but, more important than all, it will arouse the true college spirit among the students in a way that nothing else could possibly do, and so endear them to their Alma Mater that, as alumni, they will still adhere to the Buff and Blue, and actively support and assist it when they go out into the world of business.

Plans have already been partially completed for the football team next fall. From five to seven games will be played, and even though the majority of them may result in defeats, the foundations will have been laid for future championships. Gallaudet, Gettysburg, Delaware College, Johns Hopkins, M. A. C. and Randolph-Macon are our most likely opponents in the early season games, while Catholic University and Georgetown will be our opponents in the two closing games.

No manager has as yet been selected, but Prof. McNemar, to whom most of the credit for the resumption of football must go, has taken active charge of the matter, and there is, therefore, no doubt but what all necessary arrangements will be made, and that next fall we will have the great pleasure of once more supporting a representative on the gridiron.

BASKET BALL

LEO C. TERRY, Manager..... HARRY ALMON, Captain.

When the first call was issued for candidates for the team about twenty men responded to the call. For two weeks this squad held forth at the Epiphany gym, and then the twelve best men were selected and taken to the Y. M. C. A. gym, where arrangements had been made for practice, as well as for the playing of our games. Headed by Captain Almon, and Groesbeck and Shaver, of last year's varsity, the squad began to work in earnest. But, handicapped by the impossibility of securing an experienced coach, as well as by the fact that practices could be held for only an hour twice a week, the fellows were almost wholly unsuccessful in developing team work.

This was the condition of the team when they journeyed to Annapolis on December 22 to play the fast Navy team. As was to be expected, they were beaten, 45 to 11. In the next game against Gallaudet, at the Y. M. C. A., we won by the close score of 18 to 17. Next we journeyed out to the Hilltop, where our old rivals beat us 27 to 23. Then came the disastrous Southern trip, where four games were lost. Virginia took our measure, 51 to 24; Washington and Lee, by 37 to 20 in a game featured by poor refereeing; V. M. I. by 42 to 13, and Randolph-Macon by 38 to 19. Only in the Virginia game, however, did we have our regular lineup. Almon had to return immediately after this game; Mathews after the W. and L. game, and both Shaver and Groesbeck after the V. M. I. game. This left Getchell as the only regular in the lineup against Randolph-Macon. There is consequently a good excuse for the losses of these games, and the team then became pretty badly demoralized, and the losing streak accordingly continued, Catholic University beating us 29 to 11 at the Arcade, and Georgetown by 29 to 19 at the Y. M. C. A.

But in the meantime George Colliflower had been secured to coach the team, and gradually he succeeded in developing more team work. Before much could be accomplished, however, Gallaudet defeated us at Kendall Green 50 to 24. The next week, however, Temple University, who the day before had met Gallaudet and defeated them 50 to 46, came to the Y. M. C. A. and we defeated them 24 to 20. Then on February 12 Catholic University was met at the "Y," and despite the fact that we played winning ball throughout, the incompetency of the officials allowed them to beat us by 23 to 19. Virginia was next entertained at the home court, and in a hotly contested game beat us by the close score of 26 to 20.

Again, with a weakened team, a short trip was taken, on which Washington College defeated us 28 to 12, and Delaware.

At the time of going to press three games still remain to be played—Temple at Philadelphia, Bucknell at Lewisburgh, and Washington College at home. On the improved showing of the team these three games should result in victories.

Competitively, the season has been a disastrous one. But when it is considered that all the strongest teams of this section have been played, and that for the larger part of the season we could not secure the services of an experienced coach, there is no reason to feel dissipated. All kinds of hard luck have been encountered, but despite all this, the prospects for the future were never so bright as now. Shaver is the only regular who will be lost by graduation, and with Colliflower in charge from the beginning of the season, and with all the splendid material he will have to work with, there is no doubt but what he will be able to turn out a very strong team next year.

"Shorty" Almon, captain and forward, again leads the team in scoring, despite the fact that he was late in hitting his stride. Being compelled to work into the "wee sma'" hours night after night, it was naturally impossible for him to do justice to himself. He has made a good captain, however, and has been of great value to the team.

Mathews, called "Matty" by his team mates, runs Almon a close second in points scored, being only about three points behind his captain. He has been of inestimable value to the team, and his earnest work has been an inspiration to the other members of the team. His ability may be judged from the fact that "Pop" Lanigan, of Virginia, terms him one of the best pivot men he has seen in college basketball.

Homer Shaver ranks next in the number of points scored, which is saying a great deal for a guard. In several games he has been compelled to shift to a forward position, and in the V. M. I. game he held down center. Aggressive, full of pep, and a close guarder, he has been of the utmost assistance to the team.

Groesbeck is unquestionably one of the best guards in the South. He has no peer in his ability to break up dribbles, and, in fact, almost any other sort of play. "Groesy" is one of the most consistent and dependable players on the team, and is the most likely selection for next years captaincy.

Getchell has proven his value to the team by his consistent work, and but for the fact that he severely sprained his ankle in the opening game, his record would, no doubt, be much better. "Getch" is an earnest and spirited player, and brings just the necessary amount of added weight up forward to make him a good running mate for Almon.

Powers, who joined the team at the beginning of the second semester, was not long in proving his ability, and in the games he has played he has shown himself to be a most consistent forward. He is the best shot from the foul line of anyone on the team, and he is almost as accurate in caging them from the court.

Wilson, though a substitute, has played in nearly every game, and has proven himself a most aggressive and earnest player. With more experience he will make a good man to fill Shaver's place at guard.

Eliason, the other substitute guard, has shown well in the games he has played, and gives promise of developing into a very capable guard. "Wax" is fast, a good passer, and, incidentally, a pretty accurate shot.

Allen, substitute forward, is one of the fastest men on the squad, and he can pick passes out of the air with unerring consistency. "Blondy" is always full of pep, and always works hard for the welfare of the team.

Ritzhaupt is another capable substitute forward, and plays a hard, earnest game. With more experience "Ritz" will make an enviable reputation.

Elleson, substitute center, can out jump any man on the team, and he never knows when he is tired, if, in fact, he ever does get tired. He plays the same steady game at the end as at the beginning.

Leonard, another candidate for forward, shows marked ability, and though he has had but little opportunity this year to demonstrate his worth to the team, he is bound to be heard from next year.

George Colliflower has done wonders with the team since he took active charge. Had he coached us from the beginning, an entirely different story could, no doubt, be told. He knows the game thoroughly; he has had wide experience as player, coach and referee, and with him in charge of the squad next year George Washington will have the best team in its history.

As to the manager his record must stand on its merit. Mistakes have been made in performing the multitudinous duties of the position, but never wilfully. Had it not been for the many misfortunes that have befallen the team far greater success would have been achieved. But despite the loss of the larger part of the games, the season has been successful, in that it has brought out greater support on the part of the students, and has laid the foundations for a strong team next year.

TRACK

Owing to the loss of all the members of last year's relay team, which won the two-mile S. A. I. A. A. championship, but little has been accomplished competitively. But the twelve men who are out are all youngsters, and give promise of developing into capable runners. Being their first experience, not a great deal could be expected of them this year.

In the Georgetown meet Catholic University defeated us pretty badly, but as two of our best men were laid up, this was only to be expected. In our own meet a short-distance team from M. A. C. will be run, and better things are expected. All the squad, composed of Semmes, pole vaulter, and Harsch, Prettyman, Johnson, James, Scott, Vanderbrock, Carmody, Schladt, Shinnick, Alexander and Wingate, runners, will be entered. Semmes can be depended on as a point getter, and some of the others are sure to come through with points.

The most important event will be the track meet on March 4. At the time of going to press the arrangements have been practically completed, and the meet promises to be one of the best ever held here. Three hundred athletes, representing nearly fifty different universities, schools and athletic clubs, are entered. Included in this number are the best athletes of the South Atlantic section, as well as the crack team from Lehigh. The meet will be in charge of the most experienced and competent officials, and with Prof. McNemar's customary efficient management, it is safe to assert that the meet will be a most successful one.

The features will be a one-mile relay between Lehigh and M. A. C., a two-mile relay between Virginia and V. P. I., a one-mile relay between Johns Hopkins and Georgetown, and a relay between another M. A. C. team and our own team, composed of Harsch, Scott, James, Vanderbrock and Alexander.

To Prof. McNemar and a small group of ever-faithful students must go the credit for the success of the meet. Unless some unforeseen misfortune occurs, the meet will be a financial success, as well as one of the best competed ones that has been held in years.

The Glee Club .

The Glee Club of the George Washington University was organized April 27th, 1915. The first meeting of the academic year 1915-16 was held November 13, 1915. The constitution as first adopted was amended in some particulars, and the following officers were elected for the year 1915-16: Leo Terry, Business Manager; Thomas W. Rhoads, Secretary; John L. Mitchell, Treasurer; William Tonne, Librarian; Professor Otis D. Swett, Director.

The first public performance, which was given in Assembly Hall February 25th, 1916, was a great success.

Now that the Glee Club has been formally organized, it bids fair to become one of the foremost of the University's social activities. As in athletics, whatever success the Glee Club may hope to achieve will depend upon the sacrifices the members are willing to make, for many of them earn their own livelihood. No doubt in future years many a smile will be forthcoming on the remembrance of our midnight rehearsals.

This brief sketch would be incomplete without an acknowledgement of the splendid and whole-hearted services rendered the Glee Club by its Faculty Director, Professor Otis D. Swett. Whatever may have been accomplished thus far is due to his enthusiasm, his perseverance and his unabounding patience.

The membership includes the following students:

J. E. Arbeely, William Boyle, R. J. Beck, C. Dunagan, H. Enlows, William Gilligan, W. A. J. Gersdorff, B. Hamilton, C. R. King, Karl B. Lutz, J. E. Larson, John L. Mitchell, J. E. Maryman, A. A. Moore, G. Nordlinger, C. W. Prettyman, Thomas W. Rhoads, L. J. Reigelman, W. F. Sullivan, H. H. Shinnick, R. A. Styer, C. L. Stretch, R. Schmidt, William Tonne, Leo Terry, Van Kirk, Eugene Walter, Thomas T. MacEwen, D. E. Clark.

The Dramatic Society

THE DRAMATIC SOCIETY

The first meeting of the Dramatic Association was held Wednesday evening, November 8. Each person interested endeavored to produce his dramatic ability in a three minute recitation or performance. Dean Wilbur, Professor McNemar and Mr. Wheeler judged the performers.

The officers of the Dramatic Society are: Franklin Myers, president; Miss Mabel Blanchard, vice-president; Miss Lenore Kolar, secretary, and George Nordlinger, treasurer.

Those who were given try-outs and admitted to the Society are the following:

Misses Blanchard, Ryan, Davis, E. Davis, Vaux, Newcombe, Geschicter, Kolar, Wingate, Seibold, Dixon, Bose, Hitchcock, Heron, and Abbott.

Messrs. Rhoads, Myers, Gluck, Wingate, Staler, Tashof, Lightfoot, and Nordlinger.

On December 17th the first of a series of Dramatic Sketches was staged. This was to test the skill of the members of the Society. Three delightful sketches were selected for presentation, and about 30 people were in the casts. The plays and the casts were:

A scene from "Les Miserables," with Mr. Gluck as Jean Valjean, Mr. Lightfoot as The Bishop, Miss Geschicter as his sister, Miss Dixon as Marie, and Mr. Tashof as Captain of Gendarmes.

"Doctor Cure-All," with Mr. Nordlinger as the Doctor, and Misses D. Davis, E. Davis, Vaux, Walter, Seibold, Kolar, Newcombe, Abbott, and Mr. Wingate as his patients.

"Ze Modern English," with Mr. Myers, as Ralph Random; Miss Wingate as his mother; Miss Ryan as Marie; Miss Blanchard as Effie Random, and Mr. Burton as Tom Fenwick.

The second series of "Dramatic Sketches" was given before an audience which completely filled the Immaculate Conception Auditorium. The comedies were very creditably presented and were received with great appreciation.

The first sketch on the program was "A Question of Sex," by the well-known Arnold Bennett, a refined comedy of classic type. The cast included Mr. Gluck, as "George Gower;" Miss Edna Dixon, as "May Forest" (his married sister); Miss Frances Geschicter, as "Helen Stanton;" and Mr. B. Lightfoot, as "Francis Gower."

The second sketch of the evening was "Prexy's Proxy," a rollicking college comedy, dealing with the pranks and troubles of two college students, which kept the audience in a gale of laughter. The two college students were well presented by Messrs. Detlow Martin and George Nordlinger. Misses Lenore Kolar and Dorothy Davis received great applause for their work in the parts of "Bessie Miller," a fair freshman, and "Jane," Prexy's daughter, respectively. The part of Prexy, the president of the college, was portrayed with great talent by Lawrence Burton. Unusual praise is due Miss Inez Ryan for her characterization of the spinster, "Rachel Kargill."

The third sketch was the street scene from Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice." Miss Wingate's "Launcelot Gobbs" was portrayed with exceptional talent, and Miss Blanchard's interpretation of Old Gobbo was perfect. Miss Ryan, as Bassanio, completed the cast.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

The Girls' Glee Club of the University has been most successful this year, the selections which it has contributed at the various social occasions being indicative of the splendid training the members received under the direction of the president, Marie E. Gatchell.

At the beginning of the school term the Glee Club sang at the University "Mixer." This was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the year. The Monday chapel services have also been enlivened at times by the singing of hymns. At present a group of songs is being rehearsed for the Spring Alumni Meeting, which is always looked forward to with pleasure.

The officers of the Society are: Marie E. Gatchell, '16, President; Theodosia D. Seibold, '17, Secretary; Margaret Haines, '16, Treasurer; Minna P. Gill, '19, Librarian, and Joanna E. Best, '16, Accompanist. The other members are: Mabel E. Blanchard, '16; Rachel Benfer, '19; Elizabeth Cullen, '18; Eleanor Earnshaw, '19; Elizabeth Heitmuller, '19; Margaret M. Knowles, '16; Ruth Phillips, '19; Elizabeth Richardson, '18, and Dorothy Sornborger, '18.

The Veterinary Medical Association was organized during the session of 1908-1909. Its membership is composed of the members of the Faculty and the Alumni of the Veterinary College of George Washington University as honorary members, and the students as active members.

The aim of the Association is to assist its student members in preparing for the broader sphere of life they are about to enter as professional men, and to enable them to intelligently discuss the questions and problems encountered in the various branches of veterinary medicine. In order to accomplish its objects, papers pertaining to some phase of the profession are read at each meeting, either by students, honorary members or by some reputable speaker, after which a free discussion follows. In this way much benefit is derived, and many interesting scientific points are brought out in debate.

These meetings, held monthly, provide a neutral ground where all class distinctions are set aside, where Freshmen, Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors mingle and enjoy equal rights. Here many pleasant and lasting friendships have sprung up among members of the different classes, thus helping, more than any other one thing, perhaps, to promote a common interest in regard for the welfare of the department.

Each year a banquet is held, at which invited guests help to enliven the occasion with informal speeches, and contribute much to an enjoyable occasion.

Keeping pace with the steady growth of the Veterinary Department, our Association is increasing in membership, power and usefulness, and is now a strong college organization. As in the past, so in the future will it stand for advancement in all things worth while, and will be a strong bond uniting its members in a common interest for the welfare of the University.

The Association of Class Presidents

THE ASSOCIATION OF CLASS PRESIDENTS

LEO C. TERRY (Senior College).....	President
PAUL S. GILLIAM (Junior Dental).....	Vice-President
GEORGE A. DEGENHARDT (Senior Engineering).....	Secretary
WATSON DAVIS (Sophomore Engineering).....	Treasurer

The Association of Class Presidents was organized in 1904 as a high tribunal to consider all matters relative to the student body of the University. It is composed of the presidents of every class of the University.

Through the non-attendance of many of the members it has been at times difficult to accomplish very much. Nevertheless, a great deal of progress has been made in various directions.

Early in the year the matter of the adoption of a standard senior class pin for the use of all classes of the University was brought up, and after considerable discussion a pin was adopted and the approval of the faculty secured.

The Association was also able to extend a great deal of assistance toward the revival of football, as well as toward the support of athletics in general.

It has also been active in other matters of concern to the student body, and at present has on foot a movement to revive the "Senior Prom."

There are great possibilities for good to the University and student body-at-large in the Association. It is generally to be regretted, therefore, that so many of the members have shown a great lack of interest, and have retarded the progress of the Association through their non-attendance. However, the officers and the faithful few have continued their efforts, and it is owing to them that the Association has accomplished what it has.

There is great hope of a bright future for the Association, especially as the revival of football will necessitate the establishment of a student athletic committee. The Association, representing as it does every class and department of the University, would be the most logical body to perform these duties. It is only necessary that the members of the Association take just a little added interest to make the Association one of the most important student bodies in the University.

The Rifle Team

THE RIFLE CLUB

The George Washington University Rifle Club is a student organization which is interested in, and promotes interest in military rifle shooting.

The Club is affiliated with the National Rifle Association, the promoter of the Intercollegiate Outdoor Shoot. The winning of this match is the goal and ambition of the Club. A team of six is chosen from the members of the Rifle Club each year to represent the University in this match. All members have equal opportunity to win a place on the team; those who do the best shooting in practice are chosen as members of the team.

The prize for this match is a trophy to be held for one year, and medals to the members of the winning team. The college winning it the greatest number of times in sixteen years retains the trophy permanently.

The performances of teams representing George Washington University in this match in past years have been very creditable. In ten matches that have been shot in competition with a dozen or more teams from the large universities and colleges George Washington has won three. The team of last year was a cosmopolitan one (within the University), four departments being represented, as follows: Stoddard, Van Moss, Law; Varney, Engineering; Shields, Lockwood, Dental; Crain, Columbia College.

The match, as fired in 1915, comprised three stages: Two hundred yards rapid fire, 300 and 500 yards slow fire. Of a possible 300 points, with thirteen teams competing, the standing of George Washington at the completion of each stage was as follows: First stage, third place, score 282, two points behind the leading team; second stage, third place, score 261, eleven points behind; at the last stage the team dropped to sixth place, with a score of 259, making a total of 802. Owing to a misunderstanding of the rules governing the match, time was called at the last stage before a complete score had been fired, causing a loss of three shots, or a possible fifteen points.

Complete scores of all the teams competing are given in the following table:

The Girls' Basket Ball Team

THE GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM

The girls' basketball team has had a most successful season so far. It has only two losses against it, and both of these games, which were played on foreign floors, were paid back in full in return games by overwhelming victories.

An especially large number of girls came out for the team this year, and the chances are excellent for good inter-class games.

At this writing three more "big" games are scheduled, two with Temple University, of Philadelphia, and one with Swarthmore.

The team is :—

Theodosia Seibold and Emma Reh, forwards; Ella Gardner and Loyzelle Callihan, centers; Charlotte Stimpson and Agnes Carter, guards; Helen Hotchkiss, Gertrude Fogerty, Gertrude Walter and Elizabeth Davis, substitutes.

Thanks are due to Miss Eva Baker, coach.

THE COAST ARTILLERY COMPANY

In the spring of last year the idea of the formation of a University Military Company was conceived by General Maxwell V. Z. Woodhull, a member of the Board of Trustees, and a committee of the trustees, with General Woodhull as chairman, was appointed to supervise the formation of the company.

President Stockton gave the idea his strong support, and Mr. William Bruce King was also very active in the matter, and in the absence of General Woodhull from the city, acted as chairman of the committee.

A letter to both students and local alumni was mailed early in the summer, and a large number of responses was received. Brigadier General William E. Harvey, the commanding general of the District of Columbia Militia, and an alumnus of the University, was consulted, and it was decided to organize a company to be the first of the Coast Artillery Battalion which it was desired to add to the guard.

A mass-meeting was held on October 8th, which was addressed by General Harvey, Mr. King and Major J. C. Castner, U. S. A., the army officer detailed as adjutant of the local National Guard. By this time nearly the required number of 68 men had pledged themselves to enlist, and later in the month the actual enlistment was begun.

The enlistment was first in charge of a committee of students. It was later under the direction of Mr. W. W. Burns, a graduate of the Law School, who had had experience as a commissioned officer in the Naval Militia. Mr. Burns later took the required examination, and was commissioned captain and given command of the company after it was formally mustered in on December 8, 1915.

The company was officially designated First Company, Coast Artillery Corps, National Guard of the District of Columbia, and has been assigned to Battery Humphries, at Fort Washington, Md. This battery is a modern one, consisting of two ten-inch rifles mounted on disappearing carriages, together with the requisite magazines, observing stations and plotting room. Here the company will have its own barracks, which will make possible week-end and holiday trips to the fort. The summer encampment will be held either at that post or at Fort Howard, near Baltimore, it being possible to have actual target practice at the latter place.

The company has local quarters at the First Street National Guard Armory, consisting of a general assembly room, locker room, officers' room, company office and quartermaster's storeroom. The building has a drill hall sufficiently large to accommodate the company, and here are set up the various instruments and the plotting board, and drill is had in the intricacies of the finding of range and direction, their plotting and the application of the various corrections.

The company has made rapid strides under the direction of Captain Albert C. Thompson, Jr., C. A. C., U. S. A., who was detailed by the War Department as Inspector-instructor of the company, and it is intended in the near future to organize other companies and complete the battalion.

Within the last several decades the study of Hebraic culture began to be neglected by our universities and colleges. While the language and culture of the Greeks and Romans at no time lost its importance in the curriculae of our higher institutions of learning, our educators became content to allow a mantle of obstruction to fall before the retrospect of the life and productions of "The People of the Book." This indeed was to be deplored. A study of Hebraic civilization and Hebraic wisdom was, and is, as important as a study of these other two classical nations; perhaps even more so when the world is departing from and forgetting the great ethical teachings of the ancient prophets. So far as the universities were concerned, the wisdom of the Talmud, that wonderful storehouse of Jewish philosophy, was unknown, because it was ignored. It was, of course, natural that the ever-increasing number of Jewish students in our universities should first feel the deplorable condition of things; so in 1908, at Harvard University, the first Menorah Society was formed—"for the study and promotion of Jewish culture and ideals." Its object was not merely to take the place of a classroom course in Hebrew, but rather to include and supplement it. From Harvard went forth the spirit of this first Menorah, and inspired students at other universities to establish new Menorahs, and soon the Intercollegiate Menorah Association was formed, consisting of the societies at the various colleges and universities. Each of these constituent societies are assisted by the Association thru the furnishing of libraries and lecturers, and in countless other ways.

The work of the Menorah Societies has from year to year increased; study circles and forums have been introduced as collateral groups for special and intensive study of various subjects. Before the societies themselves, people of prominence in Jewish learning and activity lecture on assigned topics. The Hebrew language, Jewish history, the various movements going on in Jewry, the leading questions before the Jewish people today, the Bible, Jewish philosophy and literature are taken up systematically. Realizing the wonderful good of the Menorah Societies, university authorities have everywhere given the organizations their unstinted approval and the most sincere encouragement.

The movement had its influence upon an earnest and highly interested group of Jewish students here in George Washington, and last semester, on November 26th, the George Washington University Menorah Society was formed, and immediately began active work. Mr. Henry Hurwitz, Chancellor of the Intercollegiate Menorah Association, was brought down from New York, and spoke at a crowded meeting in chapel hall. Dean Ruediger welcomed the society in behalf of the University. Soon afterwards it was elected a constituent society of the Intercollegiate Menorah Association. Thus under very auspicious circumstances the Menorah began its existence at G. W. U. It has met with the greatest success. It wishes to bring to the attention of the student body these facts: first, that a knowledge of Jewish history, ethics and culture is indispensable to every student who aims to be truly educated. Secondly, that the Menorah Society is wide open to every student of the University, no matter what race or creed—it is an absolutely catholic organization. Lastly, that in no other university organization can such interesting discussions and inspiring lectures be heard.

The Menorah bids you for the coming term Welcome!

DEBATE.

G. A. DAIDY

Activities in debating circles in George Washington began when the Debating Council, with Prof. E. Otto Schreiber as chairman, started arranging its season schedule about October 8. The other members of the council were Prof. Leslie Cleveland McNemar and Shirley Penrose Jones.

Professor Schreiber during his student days was one of the star debaters of the University, editor of The Hatchet, and holder of numerous other honors. In the capacity of chairman, he will also assist in the coaching of intercollegiate teams.

As to Professor McNemar, it is not necessary to make much comment. His perseverance and tireless energy have resulted in the accomplishment of many things heretofore thought to be impossibilities in George Washington.

Mr. Jones, who received his LLB degree at the last Commencement, and has returned for Master's work, distinguished himself as a member of intercollegiate teams. As student manager, a new position in the Council, it will be his duty to make arrangements for the holding of intercollegiate debates in Washington, and for the reception of visiting teams. He is also president of the Delta Sigma Rho honorary debating fraternity.

Mr. Marcus is an ex-president of the Columbian Debating Society and has always taken an active interest in debating.

The other member of the Council is Howard Hodgkins, representing the Enosinian Literary Society. Mr. Hodgkins' interest in all that pertains to student activities is well known.

December 20, our team met North Carolina and lost a close contest.

The question was:

"Resolved, That the government should own and operate all telegraph lines, constitutionality conceded" was the question debated.

After a series of preliminary contests, C. W. Jacobson, Law, '18, and P. B. Morehouse, Law, '16, with B. P. Robinson, Law, '18, as alternate were chosen as the men to refute the arguments of the North Carolina team.

The University of Pittsburgh debating team won a unanimous decision over G. W. U. in the debate held March 10 in the Public Library auditorium, championing the negative side of "Resolved, That an International Police Force should be established to enforce international treaties, and preserve international peace." The judges were Truxton Beale, Barry Bulkley, and H. B. Larned. Henry B. MacFarland was chairman.

H. W. Kidder, Law, '18; J. G. Carter, Law, '18, and Harold Keats represented G. W. U., while the Pitt team was composed of J. K. Bibby, F. W. Glaser, and J. D. Stark.

ENOSINIAN SOCIETY

The Enosinian is a literary and debating society. Its meetings are held once every two weeks. At these meetings a question is debated, a member is called upon to deliver an extemporaneous speech, and contributions to the so-called newspapers, the "Bee" and the "News" are read. The object of the society is to develop fluency and ease in spoken and written discourse.

As a society the Enosinian is the oldest in the University, and the only one that has survived the storms of nearly a century. Shortly after the first session of Columbian College commenced, to be exact, on March 6, 1822, the Enosinian Society came into existence. Until 1829 it thrived, and seems to have been the nucleus of literary activity in the city of Washington; then with the suspension of Columbian College the Enosinians necessarily discontinued their meetings. However, when the college was reopened, in 1833, Enosis also revived, and still lives.

The career of the Enosinian Society has not been without glory. Among distinguished men who have accepted its honorary membership are: General Lafayette and his son, George Washington Lafayette; Edward Everett, Daniel Webster, Robert Y. Hayne, J. C. Calhoun, J. Q. Adams, Henry Clay, Washington Irving, H. L. Pinckney, Martin VanBuren, William Cullen Bryant and W. W. Corcoran. Of the circumstances attending General Lafayette's recognition of the society the Enosinian Catalogue, published in 1859, says:

General Lafayette visited Columbian College on the 13th of December, 1824, and having been received by the societies at the foot of College Hill, was escorted to the chapel, where appropriate exercises took place. Shortly afterwards a committee was appointed to wait upon General Lafayette and his son, George Washington Lafayette, and "request that the society may have the pleasure of enrolling their names among its honorary members."

The report of the committee stated that they had waited on General Lafayette, and "that to the request of the committee, desiring in the name of the society the honor of enrolling his name and that of his son as honorary members, he returned answer that they accepted with pleasure the honor conferred upon them, and tendered their sincerest thanks—at the same time the warmest wishes for the welfare of the Enosinian Society."

In the present day the Enosinian Society is well represented among the faculty of the University by Dean Howard L. Hodgkins, of the College of Engineering; L. R. Alden, Assistant Professor of History; Ernest O. Schreiber, Assistant Professor of Law, and William C. Van Vleck, Secretary of the Law School and Instructor in Law.

A tribute to the work of the Enosinian Society is furnished by the fact that as early as 1860 there were 1,800 volumes in its library, and the number eventually grew to 4,000. These have since been placed in the University library.

During the last few years, until recently, interest in literary and debating societies seems to have lagged, with the result that the Enosinians have only been passively active. Since the beginning of the present school year, however, the society has taken on new life, and the enthusiasm which its members evince promises that it will again become the most active debating and literary organization in the University. Behind it are all the best traditions of the school; before it is the possibility of reclaiming and increasing the honor it has shared in the past.

Columbian Debating Society

COLUMBIAN DEBATING SOCIETY

The Columbian Debating Society has now passed through twenty-nine years of eventful achievement, and next year will be able to look back upon three decades of continuous, steadfast progress without the break of a single session to mar the continuity of its splendid record. After searching through many a musty and age-worn volume of University records, it is found that in the fall of 1889 a group of earnest students of the Law School came together and organized themselves into the Columbian Debating Society, making its object the training of its members in the art of forensic address. Among the charter members were Professors Clephane and Earnest, of the Law School, whose successful careers before the bar, together with the notable record of those other signers of its original constitution, attest to the kind of men the Columbian has trained in the "noblest of all the arts." The old Columbian voices echo in the halls of many legislatures; their convincing logic is heard before the bars of every state in the Union; they read from the high throne of judgment thruout the land opinions which call forth the admiration of the greatest disciples of Blackstone and Justinian. The secret of the Columbian's success is a simple one; it has been forever in earnest. Its members are required to make unceasing effort, to create perfect work, and at all times to give one another the helping hand of encouragement.

The present year has seen the Columbian reach the very zenith of its success. There are fifty-five active members on its roster—more than any other literary organization of the University has ever had. The attendance at every meeting is the best witness of the successful methods pursued by the Society, and the intense interest of all its members in everything pertaining to its welfare has been the glory of its constituents and the surprise of those working in other organizations, who, before they visited the Columbian mourned that student activity in the University was dead. In debating procedure this year the Society has made a number of progressive departures, adopting the most approved methods of forensic training.

The primary object of the Columbian has not been to contribute good debaters for the intercollegiate teams, although the University teams have, with very few exceptions, been composed of Columbian men. Its primary object has been to produce men who will be able to meet in every way the increasing exactitudes of modern public life; who will stand by virtue of their power of expression at the head of their communities; who, by their clearness of thought and trained diplomacy, will become leaders in their chosen professions. The Columbian's forum has at all times been occupied with the most recent and important sociologic, economic and political questions—it has sought to instil into its members love for progressive democracy and a broadness of view, so that when they become soldiers in the battle of life they may contribute the finest gifts of American citizenship to our great republic.

G. W. U. ART SOCIETY

The George Washington University Art Society, which was founded by William S. Hance, Jr., January 7, 1916, has as its object to boost and advertise all the activities of the University by means of posters and other art works. Before the movement to start this club was launched the sanction of a member of the Faculty Committee on Student Activities was obtained. This movement was looked upon by this faculty member, Prof. Leslie Cleveland McNemar, as a A1 idea. Many advance notices were posted, and some printed in The University Hatchet before the first meeting was called. Before the election of officers over a dozen names to be considered in its organization were received. Nearly every department of the University now has a representative artist in the Society.

To become a member a student has to submit at least three drawings, executed by himself, which shall be brought before the Society in general assembly and passed upon. If two-thirds of the enrolled members decide the applicant should be admitted, his name is put on the roll.

This Society, too, has no regular fees, it depending for its material from organizations wishing to be advertised throughout the departments of the University. There are four officers, and they are:

THE LEGAL AID SOCIETY

Executive Committee

ORVILLE R. VAUGHN.....	Chairman
L. WALLACE SPRINGER.....	Secretary-Treasurer
E. OTTO SCHREIBER, JR.....	Faculty Member
DAVID BAER.....	Alumni Member

"The Legal Aid Society of the George Washington University" was organized in March, 1914, by the co-operative effort of Prof. Everett Fraser, the present Dean of the Law School, and a few alumni and third-year students of the Law School.

The objects and purposes for which it was organized are: First, to furnish free legal aid to those persons who, by reason of needy circumstances, are unable to procure the services of an attorney, and to prosecute or defend in the courts meritorious cases of such persons; and, second, to offer to the student members of the Society practical advantages and experience in addition to those furnished by their regular law course.

The membership of the Society is divided into two classes—active and associate. The active members are selected from the best students of the second and third-year classes, and of the post-graduate classes upon nominations made by the faculty upon a basis of scholarship. The selection of active members from the second-year class is made during the second semester. The associate members are elected from graduates of the Law School engaged in the practice of law in the District of Columbia. They are elected, subject to their acceptance, for a term of one year, for the purpose of conducting the actual trial of cases taken into the courts for adjustment.

The office of the Society is in the office of the clerk of the Moot Court in the Law School. The active members in turn assume the duty of being in charge of the office, one member being assigned to duty each evening, except Sundays and holidays. The member in charge of the office receives clients in consultation, and is responsible for the conduct of all cases coming in during his hours of office. While most of the work is done by the active members, the affairs of the Society are directed by an executive committee, which is composed of two student members, a faculty member, and an alumnus engaged in practice in the District of Columbia. No legal action may be taken without the authority of the executive committee.

The work and importance of the Society are slowly increasing. It usually acts in an advisory capacity, though at times it assists in compromise, and takes proper cases into the courts. The limitations in equipment facilities and endowment are very great. In spite of these difficulties, the Society is putting forth its best efforts to serve as a social benefit to the community, and, with added efficiency and more adequate organization, for which it is now striving, it confidently expects maximum success.

The Woman's University Club has crystalized into a definite body, and has taken on a definite meaning. A few years ago all there was of it was a vague desire to organize all the women students, and to make college life more desirable. No one in the organization then knew exactly what the scope, purpose and result of it might be, in spite of its written constitution.

Its greatest accomplishment, as far as the whole University is concerned, is its instrumentality in bringing together students from all departments of the University. For the first time in history Dental students mixed freely with one from Teachers' College, while fair Columbian College co-eds held conversations indiscriminately with "Medic" or "Engineer."

While the Club holds two receptions a year to all students of the University, six "parties" are given for just the girls. Each of the four classes, the officers of the club, and the "prize class" in turn are hostesses at these parties. Some of these co-ed affairs have been rather thrilling, to say the least.

But there is more serious work going on at the same time under the auspices of the W. U. C. Miss Julia Ruff, chairman of the religious work committee, has had a year of successful Monday chapel services.

Then, also, the wild, wandering spirits of the University were bridled, and, to keep them from damaging the school property, were safely guided on long moonlight hikes by Miss Emma Reh.

Many a college song was sung,
Many a cold dog was strung,
Which over the fire got hot before long.

Think back, all of you, and see how much of your good times were due to the W. U. C. Then stand up for it and make it grow!

NIEDZIELNY SOCIETY

Installed, November 15, 1915.

This Society had a spontaneous origin in the "Hatchet" office the first of November, 1915, when a number of "Live-wires" of the University assembled and started a general, good natured "rush" among themselves. As days lingered, the memory of the struggle was continually being recalled to them by scars gotten in what afterward proved to be the initiation of a new Order, which had as its watchword, "whop," significant of the method of procedure at its first meeting. The first name of the title of this Society was selected arbitrarily from a foreign newspaper. Although at first it had no object, the Society now has as its motto, "Boost all activities of the University and be the first to start the 'ship' moving." This Order is of an honorary character and to be a member one must be a booster through and through and ready to support the College in all its undertakings. The formal installation took place November 15, at which time the Grand Staff was chosen.

THE GAS HOUSE GANG

Founded mid fumes and vapors during 1914 A. D. (after dark).

Motto: We boost chemistry. "Look for the coat."

Colors: Gas house red and gold.

Flower: Symplocarpus fœtidus.

Publication: The Gas Bill. Comes every month.

Meeting Place: "The Cat's Head."

This eminent society, composed of promising young chemists, was formed for purely social reasons. Often above the noises of the laboratory the call, or the familiar whistle of the gang, could be heard, whereupon all the loyal members would collect and transact the business of the hour, which almost without exception, would end with a hearty laugh all round.

Later, however, it was seen that a group of live fellows in the laboratory could do a lot of good work for the advancement of things chemical in the University. The gang is a very strong supporter of the Chemical Society, and in addition to this the members are always ready to help any of the students who seem to be having difficulty with their chemistry. When in trouble "Look for the coat." Those who haven't seen those coats have really missed a treat, for with their brass buttons and the large "crest" emblazoned on the backs people often look with good cause, and wonder if the wearer has just escaped.

There were but four at first—Snyder, Cathcart, Brattain and Schmidt—but one by one other worthy men and kindred spirits were found who passed the stringent rules for admission until now the gang has more than doubled its membership. As stated intervals the gang gathers around the festive board at "The Cat's Head," and while a bounteous repast is being disposed of plans for further work are considered.

"CHERRY STONES"

"New wit like wine, intoxicates the brain, Too strong for feeble women to sustain."

—Dumont.

Because of the above, the Editor decided to refrain from putting any wit in the "CHERRY STONES". Think of having all the fair "Co-eds" intoxicated from reading a student publication!

THE SKIRTED ANIMAL

(With apologies to Tennyson.)

Half an inch, half an inch,
Half an inch shorter.
Whether the skirts are for Mother or daughter.
Briefer the dresses grow
Fuller the ripples now
While whisking glimpses show
More than they oughter.

Forward the dress parade
Is there a man dismayed?
No. From the sight displayed
None could be sundered.
Theirs not to make remark,
Clergyman, clubman, clerk—
Gaping from noon till dark,
At the four hundred.

Short skirted to right of them.
Shorter to left of them;
Shortest in front of them
Flaunted and flirted.
In hose of stripe and plaid,
Hued most exceeding glad,
Sporting in spats run mad,
Come the short skirted.

Flashed all their ankles there,
Flashed as they turned in air;
What will not women dare?
(Though the exhibit show
Some of them blundered.)
All sorts of types of pegs—
Broomsticks, piano-legs;
Here and there fairy shapes
Just built to walk on eggs
Come by the hundred.

When can their glory fade?
Oh, the wild show they made.
All the world wondered.
Grande dame and ma'mselle,
Shop girls and Bowery belle—
Four hundred?—H'm—oh well,
Any old hundred.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS FOR THE LADIES.

Cranberry Pie With or Without.

Take a quart of cranberries, or buy them, as you see fit; put in a bowl, wash with soap (don't leave the cake in) sprinkle with a little phosphate or a little blue vitriol, cover and place in oven (be sure to light the oven). To make the pie without the berries, simply omit that article in the above recipe.

Never throw fly paper away. With a little ingenuity dainty catch-alls may be made from a few sheets of fly paper. The dead flies on it make curious designs which are very effective at a little distance. If the catch-alls are carefully made they will afford endless amusement for the family in watching friends put their fingers on them to see if they are real. If the windows are open in the summer, fly paper has a way of blowing about the room. This is annoying but can be remedied by sitting on it.

To one who cannot afford portiers made of beads and bamboo, which are imported from Japan, a neat substitute may be made by punching holes in empty sardine-boxes and stringing them on stout twine. A number of these strings hung closely together in a doorway will attract attention and help beautify the home. Devilled-ham boxes may be used the same way if one prefers.

Perfumes in Cooking.

It has been learned that the finest French Chefs use Eau de Cologne in preparing some of their choice perfections. Musk may be used as a substitute if one prefers. Perfumed soaps will give a peculiar flavor to puddings and sauces, and a handful of aromatic cachous dropped into the hash will attract attention. Candy flavored with hair oil may be bought very cheaply, but it is usually preferable to make it at home.

House "Beach Parties."

House "beach parties" are coming much into vogue in the swagger set. They are taking the place of the sheet and pillow-case parties so popular among the elite formerly. Fill a room about a foot deep in sea sand. Throw on it a number of oyster and clam-shells, crabs, seaweed, old cabbages, carrots, turnips, tomato cans, water-soaked shoes, defunct cats and other sea products. The hostess receives the party in a pretty French bathing costume. The gentlemen should wear bathing suits under their full-dress suits. A concealed shower bath turned on at the right time will add much to the social function.

To Remove Wet Paint.

Rub up against it before it is dry. It also may be removed with the finger or a silk handkerchief. A gallon can of liquid paint dropped from almost any height will make a unique spatter work on a silk bodice.

Much of the cold cream sold in the drug stores is carelessly made and not always the best materials are used. Cold cream may be easily made home by anyone of ordinary ingenuity. To make it put the cream in the refrigerator.

He was never satisfied that the lady understood a kiss until he had it from her own lips.

NOTICE THE CLOTHES LINE.

By looking at the weekly wash,
You can see if you choose ter,
That they're not wearin' now, begosh,
A half of what they used ter.

—Ex.

After being shaved the martyr walked over to the washstand and filled his mouth with water. He sloshed it around several times, and then emptied it.

"What's the trouble?" asked Hank.

"Nothing's the trouble. I just wanted to see if it would hold water."

Maggie—He stole a kiss from me.

Mable—Well, that was only "petit larceny."

Maggie—It wasn't; it was "grand."

Dear Teacher, please excuse Kate for being absent, as she got wet in the A. M. and cold in the P. M.

AN ALUMNUS OF THE YEAR 1960.

The husband was asleep in the parlor of a little Harlem flat. He made a pretty picture as he lay curled up on the lounge with his silken tresses of the fashionable Titian shade, his dainty spring shirt waist and the chiffon bloomers which reached to his slender ankles. In his small white hands with well kept finger nails, he held an issue of the Hatchet, the 16 page journal of G. W. U., which he evidently had just been reading.

The clock upon the mantel struck six.

The sound awakened the young husband. "Good gracious", he exclaimed. "Six o'clock and Susan will be home in half an hour. I must not keep her waiting for her dinner. I shall never forget the dreadful language she addressed to me the last time it occurred."

Springing to his feet he fetched his wife's slippers from under the bed and placed them on the radiator to warm. Then he hurried into the kitchen, and busied himself with mashing the potatoes, and pounding the beef-steak to make it tender, and with various other little preparations for the evening meal.

At twenty-five minutes past six everything was ready and the pretty housekeeper had five minutes to spare, before his wife's aeroplane was due to alight upon the roof. A sudden thought occurred to him that made him clap his hands and giggle like a school-boy. "I'll give her a little surprise," he said gleefully.

There was no time to be lost. Hastily shutting the kitchen door so that the smell of the cooking would not spoil his little scheme, he scribbled a few hurried words on a sheet of note paper, and laid it on the dining-room table. Then he turned off the electric lights leaving the flat in total darkness. Scarcely had he done so when his keen ears caught the sound of an approaching aeroplane. A low rumble told him that the machine had come to a standstill on the roof overhead.

A few moments later, the young business woman trampled from the stairs that led from the roof, tried the door of the flat and muttered impatiently on finding it locked. An exclamation of astonishment escaped her on finding the place deserted. "Where in the deuce can he be," she muttered. "This is the first time I have known this to occur since our marriage." Turning on the lights she stalked into the dining room, snatched up the sheet of paper and read the following:

"Farewell forever. I am tired of married life and have gone home to papa. George."

With staring eyes and puzzled brain the young wife read and re-read the cruel words, at first mechanically and then with a sinking heart. Brave and womanly as she was, she could scarcely keep back the tears that welled into her eyes.

Suddenly someone crept up behind her. Two loving arms embraced her tightly and she felt a man's soft cheek upon her own. "You silly old girl!" said the husband's voice. "It's all a joke. You didn't think I meant it did you?"

Instead of returning his fond caresses, the wife roughly disengaged herself with—an exclamation of profanity.

Her husband looked at her with an expression of agony on his gentle features. "Are you sorry that I didn't go?" he asked, in trembling tones.

"Of course not," was the gruff reply. "But I wish to heaven you wouldn't be quite so demonstrative. I had some 25 cent cigars in my vest pocket, and its dollars to doughnuts you've smashed 'em all."

There is sweetness in the lemon;
 There is saw-dust in the tea,
 There is sugar in the pickles,
 But there's not a flaw in me.

There are lizzards in the lettuce;
 There are roaches in the stew,
 There are crawlers in the custard,
 But there's not a fly on you.

So let us now get married;
 And we'll call the baby Jim,
 And you can bet your last red cent
 There'll be no spots on him.

CUTTING CLASSES

Why should we students be compelled to attend such tiresome affairs as classes? All we do there is to listen to old worn-out jokes (the profs' jokes are meant, not the profs), and hear the professors tell us how dumb we are. Sometimes we sleep rather than listen. Every now and then they try to prove that we are dumb by throwing a mess of exams at our poor and unsuspecting heads. Being kind-hearted, and not desiring to disappoint the profs, we don't answer the fool questions correctly, in order to give the profs the pleasure of flunking us.

There are various ways of getting away from classes, such as sickness, car strikes, work, et cetera, but these all end in the same manner as a "cut." Those students who cut class invariably attend Keith's the first time, and each time thereafter they walk Ninth street in an endeavor to see "Charlie" in his "latest." Oh, hum, it's a great life, but full of so many "D's" (appointments), for sometimes Keith's has a bum show, and sometimes we don't find "Charlie."

An old Irishman wandering through a village cemetery gazed for a long time at a tombstone, on which was the inscription:

DOCTOR
 And HONEST MAN.

Then he scratched his head and muttered to himself: "Wonder what they buried them two guys in the same grave for."

TO THE FRONT.

The call to the front had come.
Yet he failed to respond to the call at once.

Others, thousands of them had gone before him thinking nothing of the terrible consequences, or what the end might be or if they would ever hear the call again. True, it was said by many, that their main object was the remuneration; but, even allowing for the uniforms and the food furnished, that was really a small consideration. The uniforms. Bah! When would they receive a raise? What chance had he to rise in the ranks? Yet he still hesitated and pondered on the different phases of the subject.

There were so many things to be reckoned against going. The task seemed degrading; yet it was indisputably his duty. He had gone to the front before, and he knew full well in what that duty consisted. After the calls of former times he had paid strict attention and had gone promptly but now he hesitated. Nevertheless vague, shadowy air-castles, carefully built and long cherished assured him that he was fitted for far better things.

But the pre-emptory call to the front had come and that insistent sense of duty would not down. Yes, it was, indeed the only course. He would go.

Again, with a loud clang of the bell, the haughty hotel clerk's voice rang out:

"FRONT!"

So the hesitating bellboy stepped to the desk and shouldered the baggage of the newly arrived guest.

THINGS WE LEARNED AS FRESHMEN

Not to try and bluff Dean Hodgkins.

How to cut Chemistry quiz and still be present.

Not to cut French under Prof. Henning.

That "Doc" Swisher saw Huerta while in Mexico.

That McNemar is the only real Prof. at G. W. U.

To locate Dean Hodgkins by the smell of burning rope.

That English 1 is a good place to study French or to sleep.

That Prof. Schoenfeldt wants us to profound our knowledge.

That "Doc" Schoenfeldt prefers beer to "apple pie and ice water."

That Rhetoric is "self-expression through language."

That "Doc" Swisher's History class meets at Keith's.

That Prof. Kern is h-l on the beef trust. (Not "Billy Watson's.")

That Prof. Swett is some help to the ladies.

"In our la--ast exercise I called your attention to the fact that-----."

That the way to obtain instruction in Chemistry is to wear skirts.

TO THE GLEE CLUB

They're a fine bunch of singers, don't doubt it,
Just ask them, they'll tell you about it.
They practice at night,
To the neighbors' delight,
Who wonder—when will they cut out it.

WOULDN'T WE LAUGH IF—

Professor Schoenfeld took the Freshman French class for instruction.
Sumner Hunter lost "de buch" in French.
Cooper ever bought.
Miss Lyons ceased to "Fade."
Bob Carter rolled into "Eccy" class on time once.
"Mac" didn't like to talk about himself.
K. Heron hooked one with a "Steele(d)" hook.
We found our hair shirt was made by one G. N. Henning.
Hodgkins ever paid his debts.
L. Russell Alden didn't have any ancestors.
Nichols failed to tell us the "baboon" joke once a week.
"Bus" Johnson couldn't get to 21st and F.
"Nell" Stanton got off a clever remark in the course of the year.
The faculty planted a tree on the "Campus."
We ever found the difference between the Kern (el) and the nut.
The price of beer went up.
The Chemical Department ever made an inventory of "Cy" Young's desk.
Watson Davis put any news in the "Hatchet."
We couldn't manage to get to class because we were studying.
We heard a noise in the "Hatchet" office.
Dutton made a million on the Cherry Tree. (You bet!)

Heard in Moot Court (Name withheld by request)

"Gentlemen of the jury," said a student in a suit about a lot of hogs, "there were just thirty-six in the drove. Please remember the fact—thirty-six hogs; just three times as many as in that jury-box, gentlemen."

Told in Preparation of Legal Instruments

A dying client sent for Lawyers Rickle and Fuller, of course to draw the will they supposed he would make. Judge of their surprise when his request was that one should stand on each side of him, so that he could die like Jesus Christ!

Judge—Did you strike this man in an excess of irascibility?
Witness—No, sir. I hit him in the stomach.

Bix saw a lot of Grace
When he wheeled, and was entranced;
He saw a lot of Grace
In the dance-hall when he danced.
He'd thought he'd seen as much of her
As possible and more;
But found he had never seen her till
He saw her on the shore

HE'S "ALWAYS BUSY," NOW!

WILT THOU take her for thy bride?
For better or for worse?
To have, to hold, and fondly guide,
Until hauled off in a hearse?

WILT THOU let her have her way—
Consult her many wishes?
Light the fire every day,
And help her wash the dishes?

WILT THOU comfort and support,
Her father and her mother,
Aunt Jemima, Uncle Jim,
Three sisters and a brother?

His face grew pale and blank—
It was too late to jilt—
As to the Chapel floor he sank,
He said—"I Wilt."

PAUL SWAN'S ADVICE TO THE LOVE WORN

Dear Paul:—

I am a young man of great possibility. My rival is a machinist. I have the meat, but not the speed, and would like to get your advice on speeding up on some of the finer points of the game. I have to make time to get to Chevy Chase.

B. P. S.

B. P. S.—Get out with your rival some evening and oil up. He can teach you a little speed before the night is over. You need adjusting.

Dear Mr. Paul:—

I am a Freshman in college, making nothing a year, and wish to get married. We are both small, and I feel sure that we could get along with little or nothing, but I crave advice from one who knows.

T. R. J.

T. R. J.—Use Glover's Mange Cure for growing hair. I am not acquainted with a cure for palsy.

Oh, Paul:—

I have a sweet tenor voice (muffled), and I want to know how to get before the public. I play the piano by ear.

H. J. N., Jr.

H. J. N., Jr.—Unmuffle that voice. Wash your ear.

Dear Paul:

I am young and handsome; am a wonderful dancer, bowler, student, reporter—in fact, there is nothing I can't do. Why am I not more important?

G. C., Jr.

Don't have so many ambitions, and I am sure you will be able to attain great importance in some line. Perhaps you will take Vernon Castle's place some day.

P. S.

"You'r darn tooting right."

Salesman: Now here, sir, is the real thing in men's hose.

Karrick: Go on man, the real thing is never found in men's hose.

Professor King: "Suppose a small man, say weighing about 120 pounds, threatens and moved toward a big strong man, say Jess Willard. Would that be an assault?"

Future Legal Light: "Suicide."

A Familiar Question: "Mr. Porter, what do you think of that?"

Mr. Haycraft offered the information that "some chickens don't amount to much."

Student: "Some of the judges seem to have brainstorms sometimes."

Professor Van Vleck: "So do some of the students."

Jack: I would never play poker with a dentist.

Bill: Why not?

Jack: It's too easy for him to draw and fill.

Dear Doctor: Please send me another sample package of your tooth powder. I can recommend this as the best brass polisher in the country. Yours,
MRS. SMITH.

Ikey: I got into a fight last week, and a man kicked me in de synagogue.

Jake: Where is de synagogue?

Ikey: In de temple.

"I believe," declared the Irishman, "that my youngest son's born t' be a surgeon."

"Phat leads ye t' say that?" asked his friend.

"I caught him usin' th' scissors on a book Oi'd lately bought in' before Oi c'd stop him he cut out th' appindix.

To Mid-years:

It's nothing against you to fall down flat,
But to lie there—that's disgrace.

To "DETS" Marthinson:

You can lead him to water but you can't make him drink.

REV. GRABBIT, D. PH.

Dearly beloved brothers, my sermon this evening I have called "Sin." Had it been any other subject I surely would have called you to attention by the customary "Dearly beloved Brothers and Sisters."

A few heavy bouquets were about to be tossed to him (not all flowers, either).

The basis of all sin is greed. Liberality is the mother of virtue. But I anticipate; and by the by, in case I forgot to mention it before, that a silver collection (here some thousands fell asleep) will be taken up at the end of the sermon to aid in the payment of a certain salary now overdue.

I draw your attention to this trifling point so that you might be getting your money ready once for all so as to avoid the contaminating influence at the end of my discourse.

Money is the root of all evil. While there is yet time to get rid of all the root you possibly can, for he that layeth up treasure has it deposited in a combination locked vault that isn't opened in a hurry.

In case anyone has got his quarter ready now and wants to get the evil thing off his mind, the church wardens will kindly make an initial trip with the collection plates. If any man has a quarter, (otherwise known as two bits, two thins and a thick, or five thicks) or four bits in his pocket, prayers will be publicly offered for him at the close of the sermon. Widow's mites are very acceptable—from widows (let's hope there are none here).

But to return to my text. What is sin? Whence comes it? Whither does it lead? Oh, my brothers, when you go home tonight and draw the bucket from the well, drop a pebble into its dark uncertain depths and then listen for the final "plunk." What does that "plunk" represent? No. Not a stringed instrument. What does that "plunk" represent? It represents the last despairing wail of the sin-engirt, the money-weighed soul as it falls, falls, falls, to a place that the presence of the ladies forbids me to mention other than by observing that it doesn't altogether fail of rhyme with "well."

Oh, ye money-lenders! Ye merchants and maker of notes, bartenders, cupidor scrubbers, and land grabbers, when I look at you I think "truly it is not money that is the root of all evil, it is evil that is at the root of all money." And the church is $158.63 indebted to its minister. The plate will be passed around again. Wardens, get busy.

The wardens will now pass around the plate for the last time. If anyone hasn't made up his mind as to the exact amount which he wishes to give, the wardens will kindly stay with him 'till the devil is conquered and put beneath his feet. (And here thousands were carried out on the sawdust trail—with wooden overcoats on.)

"IN OUR L.A.-AWST EXERCISE--"

Bixler got onto a weighing machine,
 From his eye gleamed a villainous ray,
 He put a lead penny into the slot
 And silently stole a-weigh.

Woodman, woodman, hew that tree,
 Spare not a single bow
 Once I carved a girl's name there,
 I have another now.

The young man led for a heart,
 The maid for a diamond played,
 The old man came down with a club
 And the sexton used a spade.

THE GAME

All the world's a game,
And all the men and women merely players.
They have their shuffles and their cuts-for-deal,
And each man in his time fills many seats—
His play being seven jackpots. At first the Dealer,
Waiting and watching for a chance to raise;
Then the Man Next to Him, with his growling
Because the fates have set him right beneath the gun
And made him hold the age. And then the Opener,
Pushing his stack in on a pair of aces
With which he holds a side-card. Then the Bluffer.
Full of strange wiles, with eye-shade on his brow
And eyes like glass ones, standing pat on deuces,
Shoving his chips into the centre
Till no one dares to call. And then the Sleeper
Who never knows whose deal it is at all,
And often won't discard before the draw,
Who must be told to get his ante in—
And so he plays his part. The sixth age shifts
Into the lean and hungry Shoestring Sport
Who tries to pike a white chip to a stack,
And stays in every big pot for a sight,
Then draws three cards and makes a royal flush
And talks about his wondrous poker sense
And at the kitty swears. Last stay of all
That ends this strange eventful history
Is Hasbeen—when he may but look upon the game
Sans chips, sans cash, sans watch—sans everything!

QUESTIONS OF THE HEART

Featrice Bairfax

By BUCY LURLINGAME

Under this head our subscribers are free to ask any matrimonial question they desire and an answer from the love-sick editor of this department will be given them.

Editor: I have a figure like a bundle of cordwood. What can I do to remedy it? Oh, what shall I do? Nell.

Answer: We would have to see a picture; but according to your description you need pruning. Jump over a cliff and if you are successful in landing on some boulders they probably might knock some curves into your shapeless self.

Editor: Could you give me a nice exercise to practice before going to bed? I am as light on my feet as a team of oxen and wish to limber up. What shall I do? Ella.

Answer: The exercise, which I never practice, but which will be good for you, would be simply to hang out the bedroom window by your toes for fifteen minutes every night. This will throw your avoirdupois to your head and take it from your feet; which is what you desire. If you don't get a shape like an open parachute inside of a week let me know.

Editor: I am short and thin and desire to be taller and more shapely. What shall I do? Betty.

Answer: I advise you to move near a yeast cake factory and thrive solely on that fruit. By putting mercury in your shoes and tying a balloon about your neck you should be as tall as you wish.

Editor: I am swarmed with college chaps. They won't leave me alone one minute owing to my beauty as they claim. What shall I do? Phyllis.

Answer: If you have a mug like an oil painting you should be proud, but I vow it is uncomfortable to have a drove of pants following one around. (I would suggest that you, instead of having a dog for a pet, cultivate a skunk.)

Editor: I am athletic and find that the young men don't pay as much attention to me as they should. Dear me, what shall I do? Emma.

Answer: Perhaps you don't let them see as much of you as you should. Don't be bashful. Show yourself. Make yourself known.

Editor: I have a voice like a street organ and a physique like a jitney bus. What shall I do? Teddy.

Answer: Perhaps your vocal cords are too thick. I advise you to file them off a little each day until you find that your yelp sounds like a violin. A little gas and a little overhauling of the "Bus," as you call yourself, will do some good. I advise skating on thin ice in a bathing suit.

Editor: I have been told by two fellows in physics lab. that I am pretty and in form (in my dramatic talents). They wish to come to see me. I couldn't have them both in one night could I? Dorothy.

Answer: I don't see why not. A young girl like you should be able to entertain two young chaps in one evening. I could when I was a girl. If you can't entertain them let me know.

Editor: I innocently told a young fellow at college that I was engaged to him. The college official paper got hold of it and is making things unpleasant for me. What shall I do? Lucy.

Answer: Just treat the young man as if he were a husband and make the others sore.

After the Interfraternity smoker a kindly policeman found a belated banqueter holding on to a lamp post and crying like a baby. "What is the matter, my young friend?"

Said Miss Myrtilla Metz—

And then she went and bought a pair

Of stylish pantalettes. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"I would not wear those pantalettes,"

Said modest Gertie Pease,

And then she hurries out and gets

A skirt up to her knees. —Sharon (Pa.) News.

"I would not wear so short a skirt,"

Said Myrtle Goldilocks—

Then she tripped down the avenue

A-wearing rolled down socks. —Houston (Texas) Post.

"I would not wear those rolled-down socks,"

Said Maude Mable Stout—

Then threw her summer furs away

And turned her wish-bone out.

—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

"I would not leave my chest so bare,"

Said plump Matilda Mack,

Whose newest evening gown is open

Two feet down the back.

—Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier.

"I would not wear so low a gown,"

Said sweet Clothilda Betting,

Who has a simple frock that is

Two-thirds mosquito netting. —Detroit Free-Press.

"I would not wear mosquito net,"

Said the maid of Fiji Isle,

And then she donned a string of beads,

And went out dressed in style.

—George Washington University Hatchet.

"I would not wear a string of beads,"

Said lovely Mother Eve,

But all the while The Serpent was

A-laughing in his sleeve.

This wind the series up—and say— does anybody grieve?

A DAY IN THE HATCHET OFFICE.

8:45 A. M. Tully Garner enters and immediately drops his hat and coat on the nearest stationary object and then perches in the "Editor's Chair" with his lower extremities over his head.

8:52 A. M. "Bill" Hance enters and quietly hangs his hat and coat on the only hook in the office, murmurs "Good morning," gets no reply (Tully being busy reading The Parisienne). Hance, then proceeds to study.

8:59. A. M. "Froggy" Davis comes hurrying in, chucks his books in a corner and exits quickly. One minute later distant sounds of "Froggy" croaking with a squab can be heard.

9:12 A. M. "Cy" Young comes breezing up to the door and proceeds to play a "Tit-tat-too" thereon, until allowed to enter by those inside. On entering his favorite expression is, "Say, Bill have you got that d—— Calculus done?" then follows a few moments of interesting talk on this hefty subject.

9:14 A. M. A terrible noise makes the office tremble. Each looks at the other as a relief for his fears, for it is his thought that Dean H. is again on his trail. The gang shoves "Bill" to the front after another deafening roar from the trembling portal. On softly opening the much rattled Hatchet entrance, Teller rushes in headlong and serenely says, "Good morning boys," or if pinched for time, this is omitted and simply, "Say, who has got those last twenty sentences of French done?"

9:15 A. M. The first class now begins and for the next fifteen minutes inmates of the office debate whether it would be wiser to be marked absent or go and flunk. Finally they decide the latter the better course and meander to their respective classes.

9:31 A. M. Johnny Bixler trots into the room, recognizes himself before the Hatchet mirror, brushes his hair, tucks his books away, asks where Tully is (to know whether it is his turn to attend class or not) then goes breezing out again.

Deathly Silence Pervades the Office.

10:15 $\frac{1}{8}$ A. M. The whole gang stampedes into headquarters and the bricks in the front of the building are pushed out another eighth of an inch before the onrush. The telephone rings, Bixler answers it; another call, this time for Hunter; a couple of telegrams for "Bill"; Garner is called down town; Davis is called around the corner (towards the east); the office is now bristling with life. Another telephone call for "Bix." This time from a lady over in S. E. who wants to know if the Hatchet crew will cease the racket as her husband is not feeling quite himself since she broke a stove poker over his dome.

From now until noon, they remain very quiet, indulging only in play—perhaps football or baseball, according to which they feel in the mood for. If the Niedzienly Society is in session both are played.

12:01 P. M. The staff mechanically piles into "Gummy" Garner's "bus" after which a discussion is started as to which joint they should eat, or in other words, "The Revenge of the Greeks." "Cy" Young wants to go to the Star because he claims he can make a jit look like two-bits there. "Bix" wants to to to the White Palace, because it is quick and dirty. "Bill" wants to get a market basket and go to Woolworth's and invest in a nickel's worth of candy.

"Gummy" Garner is satisfied with nothing but the Ebbitt, but Teller who has been auditing his accounts saves the day by ordering Garner to drive according to his directions, so they all enter Mac Millian's and partake of a splendid free lunch.

12:46 P. M. Once more the worthies enter the "Hatchet" sanctum and proceed to work. This is a most wonderful sight. Words cannot describe it. Telegrams, telephone calls, visitors, and sightseers take up the rest of the afternoon.

4:58 P. M. In walks H. Peritinitus Ramsey, who immediately breaks up the working system by giving a report of the "Pyramid".

5:00 P. M. All pile off to class again.

6:40 P. M. Sounds of great affection and "Much Ado About Nothing," as the distinguished gentlemen depart for their respective domiciles.

"This is the End of Our Perfect Day."

Legal Ethics

Two lawyers, while bathing at Santa Cruz the other day, were chased out of the water by a shark. Mr. Bird suggests that this is the most flagrant case of professional discourtesy on record.

Constitutional Law

Dean Fraser—The Legislature of Virginia had recently under discussion a bill providing for the regulation of woman's dress. Among its provisions was that no woman should wear sleeveless gowns. What does the class think of the constitutionality of such an act?

A Student (after some discussion by the class)—Such an act would be unconstitutional, as contrary to Article 2 of the Amendments, which provides that "the right to bear arms shall not be infringed."

Attorney (cross-examining): "Doctor, did I understand you to say that this man was shot in the woods?"

Doctor (on the witness stand). "No sir, I said he was shot in the lumbar region."
